Ky Celebrates 1st Anniversary

SAIGON (AP) — Saigon turned from the war Sunday to celebrate armed forces day and the first anniversary of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military government, which Ky said finds "no problem at all" in the remnants of Buddhist opposition.

"We are over the hump," said Ky, an air vice marshal who has held the premiership longer than any man since the destruction of Ngo Dinh Diem's regime in 1963. He proposes to stay in for at least another year.

Fresh moves to curb Buddhist-inspired unrest in the capital and in Hue, a former capital, were coupled with sweeping economic decrees, including a 50 per cent devaluation of the Vietnamese piaster to 118 to the dollar, aimed at halting war-worn inflation.

10th Suicide

Officially ignored was the 10th fire death in a suicidal wave, started May 29, intended to spur the Buddhist extremists' campaign. A girl who set herself afire with gasoline in the Buddhist Institute compound Friday died in a hospital. She was Dao Thi Tuyet, 16.

Troops and riot police sealed off the Buddhist Institute, nerve center of the spring campaign to oust the ruling generals, in a grim hunt for the man who, under cover of a Buddhist mob attack Saturday, slew a Vietnamese policeman with his own gun.

Police Capt. Phan Huu Tran said police knew the killer, seen running into the institute compound, and that the officers were demanding the monks hand rested four men, including one in monk's robes. One resisted before they were trucked away and he was beaten with rifle butts.

At Hue, troops loyal to Ky's government trucked from the Dieu Do Pagoda for burial the coffins of three dissident Buddhist soldiers that a nun, the venerable Tri Hai, said had been killed in a clash with loyalist troops. She told newsmen it was body-robbing.

"They were afraid that when we took them for burial the monks would follow us and make a demonstration," she said.

The crackdown at Hue included a shift in the command of the dissidence-ridden 1st Vietnamese Division, which has headquarters in that Buddhist center 400 miles north of Saigon.

Col. Ngo Quang Truong, a paratrooper, replaced Brig. Gen. Phan Xuan Nguan, who had failed to swing all his Buddhist chaplains and soldiers in line even though he professed the division's loyalty to the government. Another battalion of loyal troops was flown in, boosting the ranks of the government security forces to 2,800.

Afield, American air strikes again highlighted the war against the Viet Cong. Key developments:

— U.S. fighter-bombers, responding to a report of the sighting of about 1,000 guerrillas, blasted a camp in a wooded area of the Mekong Delta 50 miles southwest of Saigon. Pilots said they killed about 40 and destroyed 50 structures.

— Guam-based B52 bombers, which started saturation attacks on Communist targets in South Viet Nam June 18, 1966, hammered at two Viet Cong base camps near the Cambodian border 75 miles northwest of Saigon and at a Communist troop concentration 35 miles southwest of Da Nang.

Lee Warns Asia To Set For End Of Western Aid

SINGAPORE (AP) — Singapore's Chinese Prime Minister, Lee Kuan Yew, who has made Uncle Sam a whipping boy in the past, acknowledged Saturday the importance of the United States to Southeast Asia security but warned Asia to prepare for the day when Western military forces will depart.

The stage will be set for "local big fish to settle terms with small fish, and small fish with shrimps" unless Asian nations make adequate preparations for the withdrawal of Western influence, he said in an address to Singapore University students.

Lee said a premature withdrawal of American forces from South Viet Nam could threaten the security of nations of Southeast Asia.

He expressed doubt that there would be "any premature or precipitate withdrawal from Viet Nam," adding: "But at the same time, I think it will be unrealistic for us to believe the Americans can keep pouring in troops and men and resources indefinitely."

Singapore, which has a predominantly Chinese population, was forced out of the Malaysian federation and became independent last August after a controversy centered on Lee's demand for a greater voice for non-Malays in the Malaysian government.

He attacked the United States on several occasions during the fall and predicted at one point that Red China would win the cold war in Asia.

"The United States is a very powerful nation," he said in a television interview. "I sometimes wish they had some leaders of equal power and consequence."

In his speech to Singapore students, Lee said he believed Southeast Asia would be "reasonably secure" for five and possibly 10 years.

But he said Asian countries must prepare for the eventual withdrawal of Western military forces and must use the next decade to try to establish "some semblance of a balance which can be maintained with a minimum of outside underpinning."

On the Viet Nam conflict itself, Lee said he believed a formula had to be found to give the Vietnamese the right of self-determination.

Flaming Cross Greets Mississippi Marchers

BELZONI, Miss. (AP) — A fistfight broke out between two Mississippi civil rights marchers Saturday after leaders decided not to demonstrate over a Negro college refusing use of its campus as a campsite.

Other Negroes quickly broke up the fight after a few blows had been struck and the marchers went into Belzoni for a night-time voter registration parade.

They paraded through the streets chanting "Black Power Now! Black Power Now!" and urged local Negroes to join in a march to the courthouse.

The heavy Negro population in the community of 4,200 was further swelled by the influx of field hands, in the town for Saturday night.

Glen Freedom X of Washington, D.C., a board member of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, walked through the crowd saying "Everybody go, everybody go. Don't be afraid, don't be afraid."

Four federal registrars waited in the basement of the post office. In the first hour, 50 Negroes were in line.

Freedom X, who refused to give any other name, was in the fistfight with Lester Kanker, son of Martin Luther King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

No Big Names With no big name leader present, secondary officials had held a roadside conference on whether to proceed to Belzoni where property of the Green Grove Baptist church was offered as a tent site. Mississippi Valley State College at Itta Bena, had refused to let the marchers stay there overnight.

Freedom X and several other workers from the militant SNCC demanded the marchers return to the college and stage a demonstration. Hankerson's group favored continuing to Belzoni for the rally. The fight followed.

The marchers rode into Belzoni after covering 15 miles.

Escobedo To Stand On Ruling In Former Case

CHICAGO (AP) — A young Chicagoan whose conviction for murder was reversed in a historic Supreme Court decision may be the first man in legal history to use a ruling in his own case to defend himself against a new charge.

Danny Escobedo, accused of murdering his brother-in-law, was freed in 1964 as the result of a landmark Supreme Court decision which extended the right to counsel to persons seized by police for interrogation.

New Ruling Expanding its ruling this week in four cases which grew out of the 1964 decision, the high court held that prosecutors may not use damaging statements against a suspect unless they can prove he was safeguarded against self-incrimination.

The latest ruling held also that police may not question a suspect if he is alone and "indicates in any manner that he does not wish to be interrogated."

Marshall Schwarzbach, Escobedo's court-appointed counsel on a pending gun-carrying charge, said the high court's ruling in the 1964 case will be used as a defense against the new charge.

Schwarzbach said he had not been able to find a similar instance of such a defense in legal history and believes this to be the first time a defendant has used his own case to combat an unrelated accusation.

The attorney said the latest Supreme Court decision on police interrogation "makes our defense even stronger."

Schwarzbach said Circuit Judge James Sullivan earlier overruled a motion based on the 1964 high court ruling to suppress evidence against Escobedo on the gun-toting charge.

CLARK SAYS STATE CAN'T FORCE MOVE OF AID RECIPIENTS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Atty. Gen. William G. Clark held Saturday that Illinois cannot force recipients of aid to dependent children funds to move to other communities to accept employment.

Clark told public aid director Harold Swank the state can cut off assistance to the child if the parent refuses to accept "suitable employment."

"However," Clark's opinion said, "implicit in this authority is the fundamental rule of constitutional law that the authority be reasonably exercised so as not to be arbitrary or harsh."

Clark expressed hope that many aid to dependent children recipients would voluntarily avail themselves of the Public Aid Department's power to aid them in obtaining employment away from home.

KERNER AT CONFERENCE SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Otto Kerner will leave Sunday for Cincinnati, Ohio, where he will participate in the three-day Midwestern Governors' conference.

Kerner will fly on to Washington Thursday for an agricultural conference concerning trade with Japan. He will return to Springfield Friday.

CIA Chief Resigns, Johnson Warns Hanoi

Helms Named To Succeed Adm. Raborn

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson coupled a tough new statement on Viet Nam Saturday with a surprise announcement that Adm. William F. Raborn is resigning, after barely a year of service, as director of the supersecret Central Intelligence Agency.

Johnson, holding his first announced-in-advance news conference since last year, also stated he has not yet decided whether an anti-inflation tax boost will be needed in 1966 and disclosed plans to appoint, for the first time, a Negro to the Atomic Energy Commission.

Helms Named

The big news during the 35-minute session in Johnson's oval office was his acceptance "with regret" of Raborn's resignation. He said the retired admiral, who managed the Polaris submarine program while on active duty, would be succeeded at the CIA helm by Richard Helms, now deputy director and the first career intelligence officer to reach the top of the nation's espionage-intelligence organization.

This disclosure — sandwiched between other announcements of more routine personnel changes in an opening statement read in matter-of-fact tones — was followed by a carefully prepared statement on Viet Nam.

In words which he later said he hoped would cause the Communist camp to "take notice," Johnson said:

"In the light of the full information available to the President, we sincerely feel that the national interest requires that we persist in our present policy. That policy is to bring to bear the ground, naval and air strength required to achieve our objective."

The chief executive hastened to add that this "does not mean that we shall not increase our forces, our missions or our operations."

Later, in response to a question, Johnson indicated military activities will be stepped up. He said the Pentagon is trying to rush contracts for military hardware this month so "we would get earlier deliveries and increase our effort."

"Honorable Peace" Johnson took a generally optimistic view of the military situation in Viet Nam and stated, "I am confident that we shall gain an honorable peace in South Viet Nam."

When asked if travels this month to Hanoi by Canadian and French emissaries, and any other developments, give him reason to believe North Viet Nam might be willing to negotiate, Johnson replied:

"I have no information that I could make available that would give you any encouragement."

The determined stance taken by the President was underlined when he argued for continued bombing of North Viet Nam by saying, "We must continue to raise the cause of aggression at its source."

The President did predict "continued ferment" in South Viet Nam even after promised elections are held.

"Rival political forces are contending for power," he said. "This is natural and this is inevitable at this point in the political life of a developing nation."

Raborn's resignation came as a surprise, though there have been persistent reports of unhappiness within the CIA about the alleged inadequacies of the retired Navy man's direction. By slipping the announcement in between word about a new assistant secretary of the treasury and a new chairman for the State Department's Policy Planning Council Johnson seemed to betray an eagerness to pass over the matter lightly.

Reason Given

Asked later if Raborn is quitting for reasons of health, Johnson said he had agreed to take the job for an indefinite period "and now desires to return to California."

Some observers were certain to view the matter as reflecting Johnson's first major appointment to turn sour. (Continued On Page 13)

U.S. Effort Won't Falter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said Saturday U.S. determination in Viet Nam will not falter from political splits in South Viet Nam or from wavering in the United States.

In what appeared to be both a warning to Hanoi and assurance to U.S. servicemen and citizens, Johnson told a news conference:

"I must frankly tell you that our intelligence indicates that the aggressor presently bases his hopes more on political differences in Saigon and Washington than on his military capacity in South Viet Nam."

"While we do have differences and divisions, I want our men in the field and our people at home to know that our course is resolute, that our conviction is firm, and that we shall not be diverted from doing what is necessary in the nation's interest and the cause of freedom."

Johnson read from a statement which put forth in capsule form the present state of the Viet Nam struggle, and expressed confidence that in the end "we shall gain an honorable peace in South Viet Nam." He paid particular attention to the political situation in Saigon and at home.

In America "a minority of our people are willing to pull out; another minority are prepared to see us use our total power, including our nuclear power," he said.

But in more than 125 recent primary election campaigns across the country "not one candidate was able to make opposition to the resistance of aggression in South Viet Nam a successful position," he said, concluding that this shows "the rest of us are determined to see this through."

As for the continuing political turmoil in South Viet Nam, Johnson portrayed this as "natural and inevitable" when "rival political forces are contending for power" as the Vietnamese move toward a constitutional civilian government.

The President declared he is encouraged by Saigon steps toward a civilian regime so far and said "we shall continue to back the Vietnamese effort to achieve government by the consent of the people — even as they fight the war."

The American objective remains a limited one — to guarantee that "North Viet Nam cannot swallow up and conquer South Viet Nam," he said. The administration's current strategy for accomplishing this is the best one, he said, leaving the door open for a boost in the size of U.S. forces there.

Asked about another Honolulu meeting with South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, Johnson responded with a general statement about a desire for further meetings between U.S. and Vietnamese representatives.

Concerning the cost of the Viet Nam war, estimated at $10.5 billion in the fiscal 1967 budget submitted in January, Johnson said the spending has run higher some months and lower in others.

Doubt Antimissile System Would Upset 'Balance Of Terror'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key Pentagon civilian officials dispute the notion that installation of an antimissile system by Russia or the United States would upset the nuclear "balance of terror" and increase the danger of major war.

These officials hold the view that the missile offense on both the U.S. and Russian sides is likely to stay ahead of the defense, and that atomic war will be deterred as a result.

Dr. John S. Foster Jr., defense director of research and engineering, put it this way in recently released testimony for Congress:

"We are designing the best defensive system which current technology permits, but it still could not prevent millions of lives being lost and major cities destroyed in an all-out Soviet attack."

"Hence I believe that deterrence will continue to operate."

The specter of Russia beating the United States with an antimissile system has been raised by members of Congress who contend such a Soviet defense would put the United States in great peril.

Certain analysts in the Defense Department go along with Foster's thinking. The civilian experts note that the United States has spent more than $1.2 billion in an accelerated program to develop "penetration aids" which they are confident would enable enough American missiles to get through Soviet defenses and destroy large segments of the Russian population and economy.

The details of the penetration-aid program are highly secret. But advanced models of both the Minuteman Intercontinental Ballistic Missile and the Polaris submarine-launched missile are to be so equipped.

U.S. plans involve also the modernizing of the American missile force with multiple warheads and maneuverable warheads. The missiles would eject three or more warheads which would be guided precisely against targets.

These improvements are not just on the drawing board—they are a reality for operational use in the relatively near future.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff do not fully share the optimism of the Pentagon civilian group and have urged an early start on a full scale U.S. missile defense designed to counter a sophisticated Russian attack.

The civilians believe that the Russians could kill as many as 50 million Americans, no matter how good the U.S. missile defense might be. But they concede that such a defense would force the Russians to expend more missiles.

Suharto Warns Against Plans To Oust Sukarno

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Lt. Gen. Suharto, Indonesia's strongman ruler, has warned military representatives to the coming session of the nation's highest legislative body not to topple President Sukarno, informed sources reported Saturday.

The Provisional Peoples Consultative Congress, under the 1945 constitution, is the highest authority in the nation. It meets Monday to start a session that will last until July 5.

Suharto's private warning to military delegates was aimed at blocking any moves to strip Sukarno of his title of president for life and make him a totally powerless, figurehead leader.

Anti-Sukarno protests, mainly from student organizations, contend his titles of president for life and great leader of the revolution are unconstitutional.

Suharto's warning on congressional action against Sukarno, who still retains widespread popularity, apparently stems from a desire to avoid stirring up Sukarno supporters throughout the country and particularly in central and east Java, his home area.

Military men and their backers make up a large share of the more than 400 delegates to the congress.

Russ Sector Holds Secret Of Longevity

By HENRY S. BRADSHAW

BAKU, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Away out there in the villages and hill towns of the remote Soviet Caucasus death is frequently on holiday, there the secret of longevity may have been discovered. Anyhow that's what the Russians claim.

For instance, they say:

Anton Pilia tends his orchard regularly. He is 124 years old. Lasuria Khaf, 129, picks tea and carries it in a basket slung around her neck. Beim Melkhalayeva, 134, is the chief baby sitter for a village which must have few babies because the average age is between 80 and 90.

Asmar Mansym-Kzy Salkhova, 154, spins wool.

And then there's Shirali Mismov.

He is 161 years old. He chops wood for exercise before breakfast, works in his carpentry shop and climbs mountain trails faster than youngsters half his age — only 90 to claim.

The Russians claim the oldest people in the world work hard and live simply in mountain villages of the Soviet Caucasus. him over. Plainclothesmen are

Can Long Use Of 'Pill' Make Cancer Develop?

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Government researchers say they hope to launch a study of perhaps 20,000 American women or at least 10 years—to try to answer a vital question:
Is there any long-term danger—such as the possibility of developing cancer—in the prolonged use of oral birth control pills or mechanical contraceptives?

The pills are being used by an estimated 5½ million women in the United States alone.
And the government, represented by the Public Health Service's National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, has taken the first steps to explore whether a massive, controlled study among women using "The Pill," or other artificial contraceptives, could be carried out.

The institute, one of the National Institutes of Health, has awarded a contract to the District of Columbia Public Health Department for a pilot study.

The study—just getting under way—follows by more than a year testimony by Dr. James A. Shannon, director of the National Institutes of Health, before a congressional committee, that until the question of any health hazard is settled, millions of women may be taking a chance by using the controversial pills.

However, neither Shannon, nor any other governmental health official has recommended that use of the pills be curbed, and various scientific groups and individuals—including a special committee of the World Health Organization have declared that:

In the 10 years since the pills were developed—including five since the first ones were placed on the American market—no evidence has been produced to link them with specified diseases concerning which some investigators have voiced fears. These diseases include cancer of the breast, the cervix, and the endometrium (lining of the womb); also thrombophlebitis (blood clots in the legs) and cerebral strokes.

Indeed, Dr. Gregory Pincus, Worcester, Mass., developer of the pills, said in a recent report to the National Academy of Sciences that various studies by other investigators indicate the pills appear to be potentially protective against both cancer of the breast and cervix.

Pincus also said there's justification to explore the possibility that long-term use of the pills might help protect women from developing atherosclerosis, the form of hardening of the arteries which many doctors suspect as a possible contributor to heart attacks.

GREENFIELD GIRL TO DO MISSION WORK IN AFRICA

GREENFIELD — Miss Kristen Nell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nell, left Saturday from St. Louis Municipal airport, for Africa where she will spend her summer vacation as a Baptist foreign missionary.

She will do general duty nursing at a 115 bed hospital at Mybeya, Tanzania, East Africa, as well as serving in other capacities as needed and required by missionaries in the field. The Mybeya hospital is operated by Baptist missionaries with much of the staff composed of Tanzanian nationals.

In New York, Miss Nell joined ten other college students from various states in the United States, who will also serve as foreign missionaries throughout the world. Together, these students will spend a day in London, a day and night in Paris and two days in Rome before separating for their assigned destinations.

From Rome, Miss Nell will fly on to Nairobi for a day and night and from there to Dar Es Salaam which is the capital of Tanzania, East Africa, where she will spend the weekend.

The Missouri Baptist Student Union, in cooperation with the Baptist foreign mission board, is financing and sponsoring Miss Nell's trip. She will receive transportation, expenses, room and board on her foreign assignment. Kristen is scheduled to return to the United States August 23 and will resume her studies as a senior at the University of Missouri next fall.

Family Of Eight Routed By Blaze Friday Evening

A family of eight was burned out of their two-story frame home on North West street Friday evening, and lost all of their clothing in the fire.

Fire, which destroyed the interior of the Richard Overton residence at 316 North West street, was first spotted by one of Overton's children about 9:20 p.m.

Overton, whose family was relocated by the Salvation Army, said that he is in the process of moving his family from the location to another home.

Firemen were called back to the residence shortly before midnight when burning clothing, and bedding began to smolder again on the second floor.

All of the family clothing was destroyed by the fire, which gutted the entire northside of the home, but furniture situated in the southside was saved.

No one was at home when the fire broke out.

The six children were in the neighborhood, and one child, playing next door, smelled smoke and ran to the fire station around the corner and turned in the alarm.

Two trucks answered the alarm, and remained on the scene until after ten o'clock.

Fire, which apparently started in a bedroom on the north-west corner of the house, spread up the staircase and into a bedroom on the northside of the house.

The remainder of the house was heavily damaged by smoke and water. The residence is presently owned by the City of Jacksonville and will be demolished to make way for the new municipal building.

AMVET AUXILIARY NAMES 2 DELEGATES TO STATE MEET

The newly installed president of Amvets Auxiliary, Martha Upchurch, presided at the June 14 meeting in the Amvets club rooms. Sgt.-at-arms Lucy Still well led the pledge to the flag and preamble, and chaplain Hazel Siegfried gave the opening prayer.

The door prize was won by Martha Upchurch with the attendance prize going to Irene Sanders. Roll call was read by Irene Sanders. Winnie Smith was reported as a patient in Holy Cross hospital, and Barbara Twyford has returned to her home from the hospital.

Two new members were received, Janice Ranson and Marie Strubbe. Reports were read by Irene Sanders and Kathleen Laughery. Martha Upchurch and Estelle Beades will represent the auxiliary at the state convention to be held in Chicago June 23 through 26, and will report on the proceedings on their return.

The president announced that there will be an executive committee meeting June 28 at 7:30 p.m.

After the closing prayer, the meeting was adjourned.

TRUCK OVERTURNS SATURDAY — Johnny C. Clements, 27, of Poplar Bluff, Mo., driver of the above westbound truck, lost control of the vehicle three miles east of Jacksonville on U.S. 36-54 about five o'clock Saturday morning and it ran off the road and overturned. The truck, which broke off a utilities pole, and damaged 100 feet of fence, was loaded with four large rolls of sheet steel. The rolls, which weighed about 14,000 pounds, were thrown from the truck, and later had to be re-loaded. Clements escaped injury.

'I know I look in bad shape, but I'll be O.K.'

Steve Laier Wasn't Lucky

By TOM TIEDE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

LAI KHE, Viet Nam — (NEA) — This war is no place for softies. One who sees much of the horror and the heroics should perhaps develop emotional armor against the miseries of these gallant, lonely soldiers.

Most observers, however, can not. Not with kids like Steve Laier.

He was an 18-year-old infantryman from Fort Wayne, Ind. A handsome lad with a puppy dog crease, eyes that lit up like lamps, and the confidence and enthusiasm that only youth generates.

A lot of guys met him here on a hospital bed. He always smiled at them and apologized for not getting up.

He could not, of course. His legs had been blown off.

The boy and a couple dozen companions from the First Infantry Division were on an ambush patrol when it happened. The Viet Cong sprang their favorite surprise — ground mine detonations.

If a man is lucky he may escape in one piece. But Steve Laier wasn't lucky.

He was carrying the patrol's radio set when the explosion turned his world to hell. He must have been right on top of the blast for one of his legs was severed completely and the other reduced to ribbons.

Blood shot in all directions but there was no pain save that of witnessing his own mutilation. Around him scores of wounded groaned and screamed. Two of them died instantly. The rest pleaded for help and water.

The boy himself was near death, yet he refused to die.

In fact, he refused even to pass out and instead began to work his telephone for help. "We're hit, we're hit," he blurted into the radio. "Choppers, we need choppers. Help us, please help."

Shortly, the nauseous realization of what had happened overpowered the boy and he dropped the phone to the ground and raised his legs to the air. He held them up to slow the flow of fluid from his weakening body.

Then he prayed and he cursed.

The patrol around him was in human ruin. Virtually everyone was bleeding and a single medic moved from man to man as rapidly as possible. When he finally reached the young trooper, he winced, turned away and muttered: "He's gone, I can't help at all."

Laier heard.

"Get over here," he called, "I'm still alive!"

The medic obeyed quickly.

"Don't give up, GI," somebody stammered.

"I ain't giving up, sir," the youngster replied.

"You can make it."

"Yessir," Laier said, "I hope so anyway."

Moments later he was evacuated. He was placed in the hospital with the entire lower half of his body brutally ripped, large holes in his abdomen, dime-sized punctures in his arms and face, and over a hundred smaller wounds covering the whole of his front side.

He struggled for life for two weeks.

And he clung to optimism.

"I've been praying a lot and thinking of home," he told visitors. "I know I look in bad shape, but I'll be O.K. I'll get by. I'll be out and around in no time."

A few days later Steve Laier died.

And a lot of the softies here wept unashamed.

A special meeting of the Chapter BU of the PEO was held at the home of Mrs. Francis P. Anderson in White Hall Tuesday evening.

The president, Mrs. Joe Smith of White Hall, reported on the Illinois PEO state convention which was held June 8 to 10 at MacMurray College in Jacksonville.

A number of the PEO members of Chapter BU from Roodhouse and White Hall attended the sessions and teas which were held in connection with the convention.

'Lived Like Dogs' Says Abducted Girl

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Nick, 17, described her seven days of terror as a captive of William D. Hollenbaugh, the Philadelphia Bulletin reported today. The Bulletin said the girl's account was in a statement given to federal and state investigators.

Acting State Police Commissioner Paul A. Rittelman said at Harrisburg the girl was "treated badly," but declined to go beyond that.

Peggy Ann was rescued last month after Hollenbaugh was shot to death in the climax of a giant manhunt in the mountains near Shade Gap, Pa. An FBI agent was slain by Hollenbaugh earlier and a former deputy sheriff wounded.

"My first night with him I was cold and scared," the girl's account said. "I cried bitterly all night. He had maps of the whole area and kept taking chains out and putting them back in. I think they were logging chains."

"We went back and forth over the ridges every night. We slept out most of the time. I think we were inside only once or twice."

"He kept going into holes where he kept clothing and food. She said their food for a day might be "maybe a half can of cold beans or corn."

"I was getting more scared and more weak," she went on. "I slept only maybe an hour or two hours a night. He would chain me around my neck so that I couldn't sleep."

Hollenbaugh, a former mental patient with a criminal record, robbed a house one night and stole the gun he used later to shoot the deputy, Peggy Ann said.

After that, she went, "He jumped at every move."

"I don't know what would have happened if this had kept going. Sometimes I prayed. Then I got too tired to do anything. He watched me all the time."

"He became more wild-eyed all the time. I think he was scared, too. But he couldn't have been as scared as I was."

officers, and figurines.

As a centennial salute to the women who figured prominently in Jacksonville history, the Rev. James Caldwell Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution has placed on display in the bank lobby its collection of figurines. The 12 figures, in authentic period costumes, depict women who played an important role in shaping the destiny of our area. The figurines, plus other items of historic value owned by the Chapter, will be on view in the bank lobby throughout the month of June.

Historic Gov. Duncan Home

As a major contribution to Jacksonville heritage and tradition, the Caldwell Chapter of the D. A. R. purchased and has preserved the historic Governor Duncan home. The home was built in 1834, just nine years after Jacksonville was founded, by Joseph Duncan, who served in the War of 1812 and was governor of Illinois from 1834-38. Through the foresight and continuing efforts of the D. A. R., the people of Jacksonville have this tangible link with the past — a chapter of history hewn of oak and walnut beams that symbolizes the spirit and the aspirations of our early settlers.

Russians, 7th Fleet Following Each Other

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
ABOARD CARRIER ENTERPRISE, Off North Viet Nam (AP) — The Russians and the U. S. 7th Fleet are following each other around in the seas off Viet Nam.

The game is called "Comrade" by the Americans. It's played this way:

A Soviet fishing trawler, equipped with an unusual amount of radar, shows up a few miles from the 90,000-ton, nuclear-powered Enterprise.

Its mission, apart from fishing, is snooping.

It wants to find out how many planes are aboard the carrier, how many are launched each day for attacks against North Viet Nam and any other information.

When the trawler shows up, the word goes round the Enterprise: "Comrade is shadowing us again."

A few miles behind, however, the fast nuclear-powered missile frigate Bainbridge is shadowing the Soviet shadower.

This keeps up for a few hours until Comrade drops out of sight, only to reappear a day or two later.

No guns are fired. No one makes any hostile moves. The ships don't even signal each other.

"They seem to want to be friendly," says Capt. James L. Holloway, skipper of the Enterprise.

"We haven't made any contact with them. They have every right to be here on the high seas."

"But I can't imagine what kind of information they're getting. We've got some of our planes below the flight deck which they can't see. The others we keep in motion day and night so they can't have much of an idea of what's going on."

"They don't bother us and we don't bother them."

Not only does this committee oversee Camp Shagbark in Jacksonville, but is also instrumental in planning day camps for Beardstown, White Hall, Carrollton, and Roodhouse.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market last week managed to continue rising for the second straight week — but not by much.

Actually, in the five trading days, the market was higher without any quibbling on only two sessions.

It was a landmark week for one reason, however. The close — watched Dow Jones industrial average managed to close above the psychologically important 900 level for the first time since May 6. The market reached its high point of the week on Tuesday when the Dow industrials closed at 903.17.

The average has marked out a clearly defined channel this spring between its low of 884.14 reached on May 17 and the recovery high reached last week. The question remained as to whether it would break through its band into higher or lower ground.

Wall Street was fairly optimistic last week as it looked forward to a traditional summer rally which many analysts felt would take the Dow industrials back up to the 920-925 area.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks last week advanced 2.4 to 322.1. Volume was 37,307,820 shares compared with 28,578,870 shares the previous week. Of 1,500 issues traded, 554 advanced and 638 declined.

Statistics based on Wall Street history were overwhelmingly in favor of the chance that stocks would rally in July and August. But, of course, there always are exceptions.

An overhanging worry which has bothered many Wall Street analysts was removed last week, for the time being, anyway. This was the agreement by 11 countries including the United States and France, to give Britain's pound sterling new and massive support.

The shakiness of the pound had prompted some Wall Street soothsayers in the previous week to forecast a nice recovery in stocks, provided a crisis for the pound could be avoided. This was done.

The glut of unsold 1966 model cars was one depressing factor which affected stock prices toward the end of the week.

Statements from Washington officials still were high in the consciousness of Wall Street. William McChesney Martin, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, was quoted as saying the demand for credit calls for a tax rise but added such a step would be "rather late" now.

Prices of government and municipal bonds advanced during the past week. Seasoned corporates were mixed but new issue yields increased.

In this region between the Black Sea and the Caspian Sea are some 5,600 persons who claim to have lived more than a century.

The secret, according to two Soviet specialists who have studied the phenomenon is outdoor living between 1,500 and 5,000 feet above sea level, regular work to keep fit, wholesome food and, of course, a strong constitution.

Talking with the specialists — but not the old people themselves, who were unavailable — can leave one with doubts about the age claims.

How about "the oldest man in the world," Mislomov. He reportedly lives in Barzav village, 5,000 feet up in the mountains of Soviet Azerbaijan near the border of Iran. He says he was born in 1805, four years before Abraham Lincoln was born, and has spent his life as a shepherd and gardener.

The Soviet government refused him permission to see Mislomov. Only some Soviet cities are open to foreigners and mountain villages are generally forbidden.

Begin Study
So the best available information on Mislomov and other oldsters is from two specialists appointed to study them after the 1959 Soviet census showed unusually high numbers of old people in this area.

The two are Abdulla N. Karayev, head of the physiology section of the Azerbaijan Academy of Science in Baku, and Dr. G. Z. Pitshkelauri, director of the Gerontological Center for Soviet Georgia in Tbilisi.

Karayev and Pitshkelauri both say there is no known medical way to determine how old a person is. Karayev listed four ways he checks up on a person's claimed age.

One is the date in his government identification papers, known here as a passport; another is the events that a person can remember; a third are the ceramic cups with their date of manufacture and sometimes the owner's name on them which are valuable family possessions in Azerbaijan; and the fourth is the number of generations of descendants an old person has.

Pitshkelauri is a medical doctor who talks with a touch of skepticism about his elderly practice. But Karayev, who insists Mislomov is really 161 years old, is a different sort of scientist.

He ended a recent interview by offering his visitor a pamphlet he had written about a type of oil that comes out of the ground at Naftalan in Azerbaijan.

By rubbing on the oil, the pamphlet says, a person can cure arthritis, sciatica, polyneuritis, eczema, skin diseases, burns, festering wounds, sterility and all kinds of gynecological diseases.

And maybe live to be 161?

To be nominated as the first Negro member of the AEC, for a four-year term, is Dr. Samuel Milton Nabrit, president of Texas Southern University, Houston. His brother, James, is president of Howard University here. He was chosen to succeed Mrs. Mary I. Bunling.

Johnson said he will reappoint Gerald F. Tape to a five-year term on the AEC.

The President announced also the designation of a new chairman for the Federal Communications Commission, Republican Rosel H. Hyde. A longtime FCC member, Hyde will be reappointed for a new term.

Also named was a new ambassador to the troubled Dominican Republic — John Hugh Crimmins who has been deputy chief of mission in Santo Domingo.

Name Ambassador
W. Tapley Bennett, who was envoy when American forces landed in that country last year in the wake of the revolt, has since become ambassador to Portugal.

On other topics, Johnson said: "I would of course be very happy to see General De Gaulle if he felt a visit would be useful."

"The government welcomes, he said, any indication that the Soviet Union will agree with the United States on a treaty respecting the moon and other celestial bodies for peaceful purposes and barring military activity there. Both sides have proposed such treaties, and Johnson said he hopes they will 'prove fruitful.'"

"He would like the public opinion polls to show he is widely approved but when that is not the case — as latest polls indicate — he is the current situation — 'we regret it and take due notice of it and we engage in proper introspection.' He said the polls 'are not one of my burdens.'"

A proposal Thursday by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield for high-level easing talks between the United States and Communist China was read by Johnson with "a great deal of interest and pleasure." The President said Secretary of State Dean Rusk is giving Mansfield's idea "very careful consideration."

The chief executive ducked a number of questions: He didn't want to discuss a claim by House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan that the Viet Nam fighting has become "Johnson's war." Neither would he comment on the activities in South Africa, during a recent tour, by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y.

And when asked why the administration has avoided bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong, he said he didn't want to talk about tactics and strategy. "Not much is to be gained," he said, "by telegraphing your shots to the aggressor."

He was asked about statements by Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor, who said he personally doubts a tax increase is in the offing, and Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler, who said it is still an open question. Johnson said the two Cabinet officers spoke for themselves. He said he hasn't made up his mind on that.

Among the announcements made at the start of the conference were these:

—More than $600,000 has been set aside for pioneering rent subsidy projects aimed at better housing for the poor. More than 1,000 dwelling units are involved. The projects are in Boston, Cleveland, New Orleans, New York, Omaha, Philadelphia, the Watts area of Los Angeles, Providence, R.I., Pasco, Wash., Saginaw, Mich., San Antonio, Tex., and the Mississippi Delta.

—Nicholas Johnson, now maritime administrator, will be nominated to replace former Chairman E. William Henry as a member of the Federal Communications Commission.

—Winthrop Knowlton, a one-time New York investment banker, will be nominated to be assistant secretary of the treasury for international affairs.

—Henry D. Owen, a career diplomat, will head the State Department's Policy Planning Council.

—Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey will lead the U.S. delegation at the July inaugural of Dominican President-elect Joaquin Balaguer.

—Democratic Gov. John Connolly of Texas will head the American delegation at the inaugural of a new Guatemalan president later this month.

north. Depending on the route, the procession still has 105 to 114 miles to go.

A breakfast of hot dogs, peanut butter and bologna sandwiches fortified the hikers as they started 2½ hours late. Trucks took them from the campsite in a Greenwood city park to a spot two miles south of this town of 2,000 where they left Friday night.

BASEBALL MUST GET WITH IT

One wonders when baseball, this country's somewhat fading "national pastime," will take the hint from other professional sports and start taking measures that will make the game more appealing to the many fans of the sport.

With just about every sport from curling to hopscotch professionalized and cutting deeply into baseball's following, it seems about time to start wondering why baseball is losing some of its appeal. It's true that the overall attendance in the Major Leagues sets new records each year, but it's also true that this country's population is increased by several million each year. Attendance will grow by sheer power of numbers alone, so new records are impressive.

You can bet the NFL and AFL, riding the crest of tremendous interest in pro football over the past several seasons, had an eye to the future of their success in their merger last week. Pro football has been one sport to quickly take advantage of what the public wants. The style of play, high-powered offenses featured by unbelievable accuracy in the forward pass, has even been geared to excite the fans of the game.

Although this may not be best in the interest of keeping football as hard-nosed and fundamental as originally designed, it's a safe bet the game will not hurt attendance and profit-wise for some time to come.

Suggestions as to improving baseball and making it more appealing to the public have been countless and unheeded in recent years. From its pro conception before the turn of the century until the post-WW II years, baseball went almost unchallenged in pulling in the pro-sport dollar. Such is no longer the case. Competition is growing and improving at every turn.

Everyone from the average fan on up to the Major League owners agrees that something must be done, but none are willing to break tradition. Some very good ideas have popped up in recent years, but few, if any significant ones, have been acted on.

Such things as inter-league play during the season, league play-offs, and even shorter seasons all seem to be sound ideas for increasing interest in the game. Instead of shortening the season, as most baseball followers agree is best, the majors have upped the regular season from 154 games to 162 per season. Bad weather at the start of the season and dying interest when all but a few teams are out of the running from the mid-way point on to the finish of the schedule are reasons why most followers feel a shorter season would be in the best interests of the game.

Regular-season games matching teams from the opposite leagues would certainly draw more and command more interest than an August series between Boston and Kansas City, or Chicago and the Mets. Games involving the also-rans after mid-year are of little concern to anyone but the die-hard who never miss a game or the out-of-town on vacation.

The actual playing of the game itself has drawn considerable fire. The slowness of the game, the great amount of inactivity during a contest and the like are unquestionably losing followers of baseball each year. Other sports have corrected their fallacies, why doesn't baseball?

We do not pretend to know all the answers, and certainly do not wish to knock the great game of baseball unnecessarily. We, like millions of baseball fans around the country and world, feel baseball is the greatest game going, and want to see it continue to prosper and truly be this country's "national pastime."

HERE 'N' THERE: Former Jacksonville golfer Jerry Barber missed the final cutoff for the final two days of the U.S. Open Golf tournament being held in San Francisco. Barber fired an 83-75-158, seven strokes below the 151 cutoff point for the first two days. Another former city golfer, Don Fairfield, failed to qualify for the Open this year.

Qualifying for the annual Nichols Park Open ends today, with the 64 players entered forced to complete their 36 hole qualifying score. Play in the popular event will begin this week, and continue on to the finals, about 4-6 weeks off, depending on how soon the players complete their match play.

Byers Brothers and Hertzberg New Method will try again this evening to get in the deciding game to see who wins the first half of the local Pony League. The contest has been rained out three times to date.

One of the nation's big names in drag racing, Stan Lomelino, will compete in an exhibition match race next Tuesday evening at the weekly drags at the White Hall Dragway. The Virden native will meet Jody Hendricks of the same town, in a best two-of-three trial, in his fuel rail dragster.

Robinsons, Orioles Streak To 16-6 Romp

BOSTON (AP) — The American League leading Baltimore Orioles unloaded 18 hits and five homers, including blasts by the Robinson boys, and pounded Boston 16-6 Saturday.

Jim Palmer picked up his seventh victory in 10 decisions as the Orioles maintained their two-game lead over Cleveland with their 11th triumph in the last 13 games.

Frank Robinson, the league's batting and home run leader, drove in four runs, while Brooks and Dave Johnson, who also homered, each collected three RBIs. Bob Powell collected a homer, double and a pair of singles. Curt Blefary also homered.

The Orioles jumped on Boston starter Bob Sadowski for four quick runs in the first inning as Russ Snyder singled for the first of his three hits, Frank Robinson drilled his 18th homer. Brooks Robinson singled and Powell cracked his 12th homer.

Brooks Robinson, who like Frank has homered in each of Baltimore's four games in Fenway Park this season, lined a three-run shot just inside the right field foul pole for his 12th homer in the fourth.

A single by Powell and a walk to Blefary set up Johnson for his fifth homer in the sixth. Blefary wrapped up the homer barrage in the ninth.

Pony-Colt League

John Ellis and Lions, both league leaders, notched lopsided triumphs in Pony, Colt League action at Nichols Park Saturday evening. John Ellis pounded Coca Cola, 14-2, and Lions bombed Kiwanis, 12-2, in a five inning contest.

Ellis pounded out ten hits and rode Paul Mosley's 15-strike-out pitching to victory, giving the victors a 7-2 record.

Lions overcame a 2-0 deficit with an eight-run second and romped in from there. The game was called in the fifth when Harry Howe was struck in the nose by a ball, giving Kiwanis only eight remaining eligible players.

Red-Hot Angels Streak To 7th Straight Win, 7-3

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Bobby Knop's three-run double in the fourth inning and a two-run homer by Willie Smith in the seventh, carried the California Angels to their seventh straight victory, 7-3 over Kansas City Saturday night.

Knop's double broke a scoreless deadlock after the Angels had loaded the bases on singles by Jim Fregosi and Norm Siebern and a hit batter.

Smith capped a three-run seventh inning uprising with his homer after Jose Cardenal drove in the first run with a sacrifice fly. Jim Piersall's squeeze bunt brought in the final run in the eighth inning.

UCLA Cops Title

Matson, Lindgren NCAA Meet Stars

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Big Randy Matson of Texas A&M and tiny Gerry Lindgren of Washington State were double winners in record-smashing fashion while UCLA walked off with the team crown as the NCAA Track and Field Meet closed Saturday.

Matson, world champion shot-putter, shattered the NCAA discus record with a 197-4 toss. Lindgren romped to a meet 3-mile record of 13:33.7 in the final program in which UCLA set a 4-40 relay record.

Matson won the shotput Friday with an NCAA record 67-11 1/2, well below his world mark of 70-7 1/2.

In Thursday's opening event, Lindgren won the 6-mile handily but failed in a record try. In all, four NCAA records were established and one tied. A whopping total of 10 individual champions were dethroned.

A meet fizzle was Tommie Smith of San Jose State, who was scratched from his 220 specialty after pulling up lame running anchor in the 440 relay.

Friday, Smith finished second in the 100, won by defending champion Charlie Greene of Nebraska in meet record-matching time of 9.3, and placed third in the long jump.

No Repeat Champions
None of the six defending individual champions in action Saturday repeated.

UCLA, producing new champions in high hurdler Ron Copeland, 220 winner Tom Jones and the 440 and mile relay events, tumbled by UCLA's 440 relay team with a 39.9 clocking, bettering the meet mark of 40.1 set by Illinois in 1964. This is only two-tenths a second slower than the world record of 39.7 set by Stanford last year.

After a morning-long meeting, the rules committee reversed Friday's disqualification of UCLA's Copeland in the 120 high hurdles because of pulling his trailing leg around the corner of the hurdle.

The disqualification rule was wrongly invoked, it was reported, since it applies chiefly to the 440 intermediate hurdles, instead of the high hurdles.

Southern Illinois tied for 16th place with Stanford, Abilene Christian and California. All had team scores of 9.
Tom Ashman of Southern Illinois tied with two others for fifth place in the high jump event, with a 6-5 mark.

Palmer Leading Casper By 3, Nicklaus Closing

Arnie Ends In Blaze Of Birdies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Arnold Palmer uncorked one of his dramatic birdie finishes for a three-stroke lead over Bill Casper but felt the hot breath of Jack Nicklaus Saturday in the third round of the 66th National Open Golf Championship.

Palmer, with his powerful game showing signs of cracking with loss of three strokes on the 12th and 13th holes, knocked in a 30-foot putt on the 16th hole and slammed home with an even par 70 for 207.

Casper, who won the Open in 1959, fell four strokes back at one stage, cut the margin to one and then slumped again for a 73 and 210.

Nicklaus, still fuming over a slow play feud with PGA officials, snapped back with his first sub-par round — a 69 — and went into third place at 211, four back.

So it was Palmer, Casper and Nicklaus, three of golf's top performers, going into Sunday's climactic round over the tight, tree-framed Olympic lakeside course.

The others were relatively far back after a day of wrangling with the par 70, 372 acre course in almost perfect weather — sunny temperatures in the 70s and negligible wind.

Tied at 213 were Dave Marr, the PGA champion, who recorded the best round of the day with a 68, and chubby Phil Rodgers, winner of the Buick Open a week ago, with 73.

Then came Rives R. McBee, the unknown assistant pro from Midland, Tex., whose 64 Friday tied the open record, scrambling in with a third round 74 for 214.

Three Tied at 215 — Al Mengert, the first day leader from Tacoma, Wash.; Bob Goalby, and former British Open king Tony Lema.

John Miller, the 19-year-old San Francisco amateur, refused to be shaken by a pairing with Nicklaus and fired a steady 74 to finish at 216.

No one was in apparent contention as America's 71-year-old classic neared a showdown.

Defending champion Gary Player of South Africa continued to find his putter icy cold and shot a 74 for 224. Gene Littler, who took a horrendous nose Friday for an 83, rallied for a 72 which placed him with a group of 223.

Ben Hogan, seeking his fifth Open crown over a course where he lost a bid 11 years ago in a playoff with Jack Fleck, tired visibly in the heat, shooting a 76 for 221.

Palmer, booming the ball down the middle of the hourglass fairways in what he said was his best driving exhibition in years, jumped into the lead quickly with a 15-foot birdie putt on the first hole.

Moves Four Strikes Up
He added another bird with a 35-footer at the fifth and moved four strokes ahead of Casper, his playing partner who was struggling with errant irons.

But at the short length, Arnie drove into a trap and missed from 12 feet after his blast-out for a bogey 4.

At the 12th, he drove into the rough, bounced a ball off a tree, hit his third into a bunker and took three to get down for a double bogey 6. He missed another drive at the 14th, bogeying, and got a bit edgy.

"I thought my driving might have become unhinged at this point," Palmer said. "I have been driving so superbly in this tournament that I was afraid I might lose it."

However, the millionaire from Latrobe, Pa., hit another tremendous drive on the 14th and got a birdie from eight feet. At the 604-yard 16th he pitched the ball to the green and rolled in a birdie from 30 feet. Most of the pressure was off.

Exciting Round
Casper said he had a very exciting round. "It seems I was in the rough all day," he said. "I was in the rough seven times and three times landed in traps."

Casper bogeyed the short third when he drove into the crowd back of the green and lost another stroke at the fourth where he missed his drive and approached short.

He collected his first and only birdie at the 10th, where he sank a 13-foot putt, but bogeyed the 11th and 17th. At the 17th, he hit into the heavy fringe, chipped out to within 15 feet and missed the putt.

Casper, in the last two years, has reduced from 210 to 165 pounds through an unusual diet but recently put on a few extra pounds to get back up to 180.

Nicklaus Charges
Nicklaus, always fighting the fat man symbol although he is a fairly solid 210-pounder, started with a birdie at the first hole

Nicklaus complained after Friday's round that the tempo of his game was shaken by U.S. Golf Association officials forcing him to hurry his play. He said five officials prodded him around

LIKE A TABLE: Club professional Phil McCormick lets fly a 10-footer on the table-smooth Number 7 green. The greens, for having been seeded only one year, are relatively free of pitting and are generally 'tournament smooth'. The pond in the background is one of four spaced throughout the 18-hole course. This green overlooks the pond that can be escaped by firing around a dogleg from the number 7 tee.

PUTTING OUT: Here, Mr. and Mrs. F. Osborne Elliott are shown putting out on the 210-yard, par 3 number 11 hole. Some of the many trees which outline and dot the course are shown, as well as one of four ponds, in middle right, and one of the many sand traps, in background.

ALL HERE: All the various types of markers and traps in a good golf course are displayed in this shot of Jacksonville Country Club pro Phil McCormick teeing off from the number 11 hole at the local 18-hole course opened recently. In front the lake, in background sand traps, and on right a cluster of trees, outline this 210-yard par three hole. Some of the still-rough 'rough' may be seen in the middle of the picture.

Fords Running 1-2 In LeMans Endurance Run

LE MANS, France (AP)—A seven-liter Ford driven by Ken Miles of Hollywood, Calif., and Denis Hulme of New Zealand charged into the lead early Sunday after eight hours of the Le Mans 24-hour racing classic.

Another Ford, with Dan Gurney of Costa Mesa, Calif., and Jerry Grant of Santa Ana, Calif., also overtook two Ferraris that had battled for the early lead and moved into second position.

The Ferrari stable, dueling Ford for world driving supremacy in the gruelling endurance race, lost six of its 14-car contingent but still had four in the top 10 at the one-third mark.

A Texas-built Chaparral, driven by Joakim Bonnier of Sweden and Phil Hill of Santa Monica, Calif., was another early casualty, dropping out in the eighth hour with a dead battery. The car, owned by Jim Hall and Hap Sharp of Midland, Tex., had crept up from 18th to 12th place.

The Fords passed the early pacemakers, a Ferrari P-3 driven by Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico and Richie Ginther of Grand Prix, Calif., as the cars slowed down because of intermittent showers that began shortly before midnight.

Fords were running 1-2-4-9-10 while Ferraris held the 3-5-6-7 spots.

Hedever Equals World Mile Mark

CHICAGO (AP) — Hedever, owned by Mrs. Edith Bancroft of New York, equaled the world record for a mile while winning the $55,000 Equiptoise Mile at Arlington Park Saturday.

Hedever, ridden by Walter Blum, was timed in 1:33.15 to tie the record shared by Pia Star. Intentionally and Swaps. Pia Star set his record in last year's Equiptoise.

Taking the lead at the start from the outside post position in the field of 11, Hedever led all the way. He won the quarters in 22.5, 44.4 and 1:08.1-5 over a track that was not at its best, the track was sloppy for the morning workouts.

Briardale Farm's Tosmah closed strongly and was getting to the winner at the wire. Hedever, hung on to win by about one length.

John R. Gaines' Bold Bidder finished third, 2 1/4 lengths farther back.

Hedever earned $32,550 and paid $9.40, $5.40 and $3.60. Tosmah returned $5.80 and $4. Bold Bidder's show price was $3.80.

EMERSON SINGLES WINNER BY DEFAULT

The 21-year-old Aussie left-hander and his countryman, John Newcombe, also had to default the All-Australian doubles final to Emerson and Fred Stolle.

France's Francoise Durr captured the women's final, defeating Judy Tegart of Australia 6-4, 6-4.

New Layout Well Worth Waiting For

By BUFORD GREEN

"Well worth waiting for" might be the feeling of most of the golfing members of the Jacksonville Country Club. Without a course last golfing season, the club now has a newly-opened 18-hole course that would tickle any golfing bug.

Sporting a fine nine-hole course for years, the club membership decided to expand the facilities and started construction in September of 1964. The course was down all last year, opening for play this spring. The first few holes were open to play by April 1, with the entire course being officially opened May 15.

The new layout covers right at 140 acres, 70 of which the Club purchased to add to the previous grounds. The 18-hole course is a tough par 36-72, covering 6,575 yards. In comparison, the Olympic Country Club course where the current U.S. Open is being held in San Francisco is a par 70, 6,917-yard layout.

The course, for having been seeded only one year this month, is in remarkably fine shape, with only a few 'roughs' and wash areas glaringly new. Almost all of the greens are pit-free, and as smooth already as most courses in the area.

Only four of the 18 greens are the same as the old 3,100-yard nine-hole course, with the remaining 14 completely rebuilt. All 18 tees, men's and ladies', were built from scratch. Only one, two, 17 and 18 greens are the same.

L. D. Packard of LaGrange, who has built several courses around Chicago and the state, was the golf architect who designed the course.

This writer was taken on a playing tour of the course Friday and left very impressed with the entire setup. It doesn't take a golf expert to realize the course has great potential and lacks only time to become a real top-notch setup.

Everyone Pleased

Club pro Phil McCormick has been very impressed with the quick growth of the course. "I think the course is in fine shape considering the newness of it. The ground we have is excellent. We still have some rough areas, but given another year we'll be in pretty decent shape."

"It will take three to four years for the course to be in top-notch or excellent shape. The members have been very pleased. Most of them didn't dream they would have a course in such fine shape so soon."

The course, where part of the Jacksonville City Open will be held this summer, has ten par four's, four par five's and four par three's. The course is outlined most of the way by trees, and almost all greens are trapped front or side by two or more sand traps, as well as bunkers by several fairway roughs. Four lakes are on the course, with only two between trees and green.

Course Layout

The holes, pars and distances in order are 360-yard par 4; 510-yard par 5; 380-yard par 4; 140-yard par 3; 420-yard par 4; 340-yard par 4; 525-yard par 5; 170-yard par 3; 400-yard par 4; on the 3,245-yard front nine; and 390-yard par 4; 210-yard par 3; 485-yard par 5; 430-yard par 4; 385-yard par 4; 560-yard par 5; 150-yard par 3; 370-yard par 4; 350-yard par 4, on the 3,245-yard back nine.

The ladies have a 6,084-yard layout, 3,083 yards on each nine. The club already has a course that packs every type of hole

Pirates Outlast Atlanta Homers For 9-6 Verdict

ATLANTA (AP) — Pittsburgh's Donn Clendenon broke a 1-1 tie with a two-run homer in the sixth inning and Pittsburgh added six insurance runs in the seventh inning, whipping Atlanta 9-6 Saturday night.

The Braves tried to battle back in the eighth when Hank Aaron slapped a two-run homer, his 22nd of the year, and Felipe Alou followed with his second home run of the night and his sixth in the last four games. Alou now has 17 home runs, all solo blasts.

The homers drove Vern Law from the game after he had held the Braves to six hits over the first seven innings.

Reliever Roy Face was touched for a two-run homer by Gene Oliver and a single before he finally snuffed out the rally by striking out John Herrnstein.

The Pirates, uprising in the seventh dampened the spirits of the 21,093 fans who boosted Atlanta's home attendance for the season to 558,242. That surpassed the 558,242 total of 1965, when the Braves, last season there.

Indians Keep Pace With 7-2 Edge Over Nats

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two-run homers by Leon Wagner, Pedro Gonzalez and Fred Whitfield overcame an early Washington lead and helped the Cleveland Indians to a 7-2 victory over the Senators Saturday.

Sonny Siebert, who pitched a no-hitter against the Senators 10 in Cleveland, extended his hitless string over Washington through 10 1/3 innings before Doug Camilli broke it with his first home run of the season in the second inning.

Phil Ortega was the victim of the first two homers and Ron Kline the third. Vic Davalillo singled in the fourth, and Wagner hit his seventh homer. Buddy Booker, making his first start behind the plate for the Indians, singled in the seventh, and Gonzalez followed with his second homer.

Wagner beat out a hit back of first in the eighth inning and Whitfield added his 10th homer, a drive over the fence in Jeter's second inning.

Booker closed out the Indians' scoring with his first major league homer in the ninth.

Nicklaus Ends Feud With USGA

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The feud's over between golf Jack Nicklaus and the U.S. Golf Association.

"No, no trouble. No harassment," Nicklaus said Saturday after a one-under par 69 for a 211 and third position after three rounds of the U.S. Open Golf Tournament.

"No one bothered us at all. In fact, they told me it wasn't me they were concerned about Friday."

Nicklaus was boiling mad Friday—and promptly made four bogeys in a row—after a USGA official ordered his threesome to speed up play. He was playing, at that time, with Tony Lema and Bruce Devlin.

He strongly criticized the USGA for its speed-up policy and accused the group of "ruining my tempo with their speed-up policeman hanging around my neck."

He didn't say who the officials were concerned about Friday and declined to comment on who told him.

And did he have a policeman with him Saturday?

"Yes. We had one all the way. But so did everyone else. There was no trouble."

He played the third round Saturday with John Miller, 19-year-old San Francisco amateur. Their round took about three hours and 25 minutes.

"That's about what we play the British Open in," Nicklaus said. "And it's about what we play the Masters in, about 3:20, maybe 3:30."

State Amateur Opens Tuesday

DANVILLE, Ill. (AP)—A field of 180 golfers, including defending champion Earl Liff, a 37-year-old Chicago printing executive, opens 72-holes of stroke play Tuesday in the 38th annual Illinois State Amateur Golf Tournament.

All players will compete the first two days with the field out to the low 30 scorers and ties for the 36-hole windup Thursday.

Scene of the tourney is the rolling, well-trapped Danville Country Club which stretches 6,209 yards and carries a par 36-71. The course record is 64 set in 1951 by the late George Bolesta, Danville pro.

Liff won the 1965 crown at Prestwick Country Club, Frankfurt, with 293, five strokes over par. Wayne Etherton of West Chicago, a high school teacher, was runner-up with 286 and also returns this year.

Among other favorites are John Seehausen of Palatine, who carried Northwestern's colors to the Big Ten golf title this spring, Jack Connor, five-time Danville Country Club champion, and these former state champions: Bob Dredge of Galesburg; John Hobart, Moline; Gene Readette, Rockford; and Ace Ellis, Evanston.

Jim Cline of Jacksonville is entered.

he set a club record by scoring five touchdowns. He also excelled in the NFL championship game at Green Bay when he and fullback Jim Taylor punched holes in the Cleveland line for sizeable gains.

The 30-year-old halfback gained 105 yards in 18 carries and scored one touchdown. In eight seasons, Hornung has scored 730 points on 57 touchdowns, 66 field goals and 190 points after touchdown, ranking him third among active NFL players in scoring.

Brock Homer Lifts Cards To 3-2 Margin

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lou Brock celebrated his 27th birthday with a tie-breaking homer in the eighth inning that powered the St. Louis Cardinals to a 3-2 victory over Philadelphia Saturday night.

Brock's homer came on the first pitch to him by Roger Craig.

Brock's safe but also touched off the Cards' two-run spree off Phillie starter Bob Buhl in the first inning.

After Brock's bunt, he stole his 23rd base in 26 attempts this season. Phil Gagliano doubled Brock home, then scored on Curt Flood's infield hit and a double play grounder.

The Phillies' Richie Allen socked his 13th homer in the fourth inning to trim the lead.

NEW YORK (NEA)—Lamar Hunt, the founder of the American Football League, had just finished relaying the terms of the pro peace merger to Al Davis, the young commissioner.

Davis was apoplectic. He told Hunt and his committee (Ralph Wilson of Buffalo and Billy Sullivan of Boston) what he thought of the deal.

"Tell him, Lamar," said Wilson, "the last provision."

"Oh yes," continued Hunt, "there's only going to be one commissioner over both leagues — Pete Rozelle."

In front of Davis sat the two men most responsible for landing him in the driver's seat of the AFL just two months before. They had sponsored him for the position.

When they were appointed the peace negotiating committee Davis had to concur. When they sold him down the river, to end the pro football war, Davis was free to tell them what he thought of them. He did. He also let them know that under no circumstances would he stay on in a secondary position.

"I feel bad about that," said Wilson later.

Hunt had gone into the final negotiations with a firm agreement the AFL would insist that both Davis and Rozelle remain as commissioners of their respective leagues and a third, impartial party would be appointed to resolve all future conflicts.

When he came out, sans Davis, it illustrated the difference in the way the two leagues operated. The AFL commissioner had no real say in the bargaining that led to the most significant deal in professional football history. He was kept appraised and could suggest, but the owners carried the ball all the way.

In the NFL, however, Pete Rozelle called all the shots, via Tex Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys. This made an interesting parlay. Schramm, as general manager of the Rams, hired Rozelle for his first pro football job, as the club publicity man. Rozelle's elevation to commissioner in 1960 coincided with Schramm's arrival in Dallas to be general manager of the new expansion Cowboys. They're close friends, and Pete knows how to be discreet and a good negotiator.

Pitting Schramm against Hunt renewed an old rivalry, for Lamar's Kansas City Chiefs were originally located in Dallas, against the Cowboys — and Lamar lost that battle, too, when he left town.

"The merger," said Tex the other day, "would not have been possible without Pete." I'll say. Rozelle laid down the ground rules for pro football peace, and they were followed almost all the way. Pete might even have acted as the negotiator himself, except that he felt he might become emotionally involved, whereas sitting behind the scenes he could evaluate the situation objectively and actually be in a stronger position to exercise his influence. You know he had to come out of it on top.

So Pete now stands as probably the single strongest man in all of sports. There's no

BUCKPASSER COPS RICHARDS STAKES

STANTON, Del. (AP) — Keeping his bid for the 3-year-old championship alive, Ogden Phipp's Buckpasser captured Saturday's $41,420 Leonard Richards Stakes at Delaware Park, but not before he had shook up his backers.

The son of Tom Fool rallied from far back in the 1 1/4-mile test to take the $26,923 winner's share by three-quarters of a length. King Ranch's Buffle, second choice in the field of six, was second by the same margin over John M. Schiff's Deck Hand.

Buckpasser, carrying 126 pounds to 114 on the other colts, paid $2.80 and $2.20, with Buffle also returning $2.20 to place. With only five betting interests — Buckpasser and Crossing the T. for a running-mate — there was win and place betting only.

City Man, 71, Hit By Train Saturday

An elderly Jacksonville man was listed in critical condition by a Holy Cross hospital spokesman late Saturday night as a result of injuries sustained when he was struck by an east-bound Norfolk and Western freight train at the North Sandy street crossing about 8:30 p.m. A hospital spokesman identified the man as Emmett (Pappy) Gardner, believed to be 71 years old, of 941 Allen avenue. He reportedly sustained a compound fracture of the right leg, two broken arms, severe skull injuries, and lacerations of the body.

City police said that the engineer of the train, K. E. Guy of Decatur, said he saw Gardner attempt to flee the tracks, but apparently became confused and did not know which way to run.

The right front corner of the engine struck the man, knocking him approximately 25 feet. Gardner landed between the third and fourth rails of the second set of tracks.

Conductor Beeber Meyer of Moberly, Mo., who said the train was enroute from Moberly to Decatur and was traveling about 25 miles per hour, commented that the train had sounded its horn several times. Relatives of Gardner said that they believed the man to have been alone when the accident happened.

He was rushed by ambulance to the hospital where he underwent surgery.

Project Sandy Beach Gets Sand Saturday; Caravan Next Week

The first two loads of sand arrived at Sandy Beach shortly before 8 o'clock Saturday morning and the caravan of trucks continued throughout the day until 784 tons had been dumped along the water's edge.

Alderman Homer Baptist said Saturday that about the same amount of sand would be needed to complete the project and that it would be moved next week if enough trucks could be donated.

Ronald and Clyde York brought in the first two loads of sand.

Several projects moved at the same time at the beach area Saturday. Plumbers completed the job of installation of pipes so that concrete could be poured. Painters took care of the wood portions of the beach house, a group of volunteers from Alexander cleared an area of underbrush immediately east of the beach area and others helped spread the sand.

K. E. Vas donated the sand hauled Saturday and many of those working Saturday were farmers in the Jacksonville area. When the sand arrived, K. E. Vas and Harold Wright operated dozers to move the sand into the proper position, followed by Dean Colwell and Sam Pevey operating motor graders.

Baptist said several women brought small children to the beach area Saturday with swim suits. "We're not ready for swimming yet," he said, "but we'll let everyone know when we are."

Baptist said everything moved line Saturday. The only thing we need now is enough money to pay for some of the things we have to purchase. Some of the things needed include gravel for a parking lot and driveways plus fence and other things.

Volunteers who were on hand Saturday included: Ronald L. York, Clyde L. York, Harold E. Hembrough, Loren A. Becker, Charlie R. Johnson, Orleans Co-Op Grain Service, Mike Kaiser, Byron W. Stewart, Samuel Murphy, Amos Western, William Hadden, Darrell Smith, Bob Scott, Donald W. Precinct Committeemen Elected For Both Parties

Precinct committeemen for both Republican and Democratic parties in Morgan county were elected at last Tuesday's primary election.

In most cases there is little change from the list before the election, but several new faces will enter party circles on both sides of the fence.

Republicans and Democrats will caucus on Monday, June 27, for re-organization. Both parties will select a county chairman plus a full slate of officers. Most candidates were listed on the ballots prior to the election, however, in several cases write-in candidates were officially elected. The candidates must, however, "accept" the office in order to serve. In some cases, the write-in candidates had no knowledge of their election, and in others, the candidate generated his own write-in campaign. Any write-in candidate may refuse to serve, in which case the party may appoint someone to serve in the office until the next regular election.

Republicans
Republican precinct committeemen elected at Tuesday's election were: Alexander, Leonard W. Kramp; Arcadia, Oren Mallicoat; Centerville, Joseph L. Stillwell; Chapin No. 1, Delbert Aufdenkamp; Chapin No. 2, Carl Unken (write-in); Concord, Warren Brockhouse; Franklin No. 1, William L. Manning; Franklin No. 2, Edwin D. SANDY BEACH FROM THE AIR—Progress made on "Project Sandy Beach" is clearly visible from the air. The area included in the project is shown in the center of the photo, and the bathhouse can be seen to the right center. Prior to work on the site, the area was as densely wooded as that seen to the upper right. The beach area is expected to extend from the small wooded area to the left, along the shoreline to where the land moves out into the lake.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE — SANDY BEACH GOES SANDY — Approximately 784 tons of sand were spread on the project area of Sandy Beach during the day Saturday by volunteer workers. Many people, including quite a few farmers from the area, loaded small to large trucks with sand donated by K. E. Vas, and made the trip to site on Lake Jacksonville. There, bulldozers and graders smoothed out the sand along the lakeshore.

Institutions Recognition Banquet Monday Evening

Institutions recognition week in Jacksonville began officially last week with the issuance of a proclamation by Mayor Byron Holkenbrink.

The week has been so designated as a salute to Jacksonville's ten public institutions for their contributions to the health, cultural, and economic background and stability of the city.

A banquet honoring the ten institutions will be held at MacMurray College dining hall Monday at 6:30 p.m. Tickets are $3.50 per person and are available by calling the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce office, sponsors of the banquet and ceremonies.

The honorees are: Holy Cross Hospital, Illinois Braille and Sight Saving School, Illinois College, Illinois School for the Deaf, Jacksonville State Hospital, MacMurray College, Public School District 117, Rount and Our Saviour's Schools and Salem Lutheran School.

Throughout the week, Jacksonville merchants posted window banners and presented special window displays in a "hats off" to our public institutions.

A special supplement in this issue of the Journal and Courier is devoted to the past, present, and future of each honored institution.

William N. Clark, financial editor of the Chicago Tribune, will be the guest speaker for the banquet.

The observance was planned by the existing industries committee of the Chamber of Commerce, consisting of Arthur J. Lauff, chairman; Ben Monte, Odell Fellauer, Tom Miller, Sam Osborne, Robert Sibert, Dr. Robert Hartman and E. W. Bousquet. Chamber of Commerce President James Malone will preside at the banquet.

Housing Project Contract Signed
A contract in the amount of $3,032,284 was signed Friday afternoon between the Morgan County Housing Authority and Buckley Construction Company of Fenton, Missouri, for construction of 236 low-rent public housing units.

The contract originally called for payment of $3,168,000 but after negotiations between the housing authority and the contractor, and an additional loan increase for the federal government, the figure was reduced $135,716.

Total amount of the loan to the housing authority is $3,390,300. The difference between the contract and the loan will be used for land acquisition and administration costs.

One of the units will be a 10-story high-rise complex with 180 units for the elderly. Executive Director of the Morgan County Housing Authority William Cole said construction would be started by the contractor this week.

Our Institutions

This week has been set aside so that we can all express our appreciation to our local institutions and their personnel for their contribution to our community. The Chamber of Commerce is to be commended for arranging this program of recognition.

The budgets of the schools and hospitals in Jacksonville exceed $19,000,000.00 annually. Most of this amount is spent here making our institutions a major factor in our economic life. Agriculture and industry add their important shares to make Jacksonville a well balanced city "on the go!"

More important, however, are the cultural values we receive from the school and colleges. The many teachers and school administrators here add much to the quality of our community. The hospitals and the members of their staffs also make Jacksonville and the surrounding area a better and a healthier place to live.

We are proud of the heritage of our institutions. The future growth of Jacksonville will be greater and more meaningful because they are here.

Consumer Protection

The so-called truth in packaging bill passed by the Senate would not, if enacted into law, do all that sponsors of such legislation would like to have done. Even so, if the House approves substantially the same measure a major step in consumer protection will have been taken.

The need for more protection against misleading or dishonest packaging has long been apparent. There is a mass of evidence which indicates that housewives have a hard time making accurate comparisons among different brands of a product, or among various quantities of the same brand. Some of the confusion is deliberate; some of it is inadvertent. In any case, the family shopper loses money.

Just how much money she loses is hard to pin down. Senator Hart, who has been the primary sponsor of truth in packaging legislation, thinks he has a pretty good idea about it. A survey, he told the Senate, indicates that the average family loses about $91 a year because of poor or misleading packaging. This estimate may be high, but there is little doubt that the amount is substantial.

Though food processors have vigorously fought the Hart bill, its provisions are rather mild as they now stand. It requires that the quantity in packages of less than one gallon or four pounds, except for those in even pints, quarts or pounds, be expressed in ounces or fractions of ounces. It further provides that the amount be printed in conspicuous type on the face of the package. It also would eliminate such nonsense as "jumbo quart" and the like. Where a product comes in so many different size packages that comparisons are difficult, the government could reduce the number.

That is a moderate approach, not oppressive to the industry. If the House also approves this bill, consumers will have a better chance to buy wisely.

Dear Ann:

Strange Office Customs Puzzle Wife

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Recently my husband changed jobs. Now he's employed in an office which has some very strange customs.

Several secretaries, I am told, eat their lunch at their desks and then go out for what they call a lunch hour. They sometimes return as late as 3:00 P.M. and pass the word that they had to go to the bank, the doctor, the dentist, or shopping.

The men and the women in the office call each other "Doll, Baby, Honey, Dear" and other pet names. They kiss one another when they meet on the street or at a party, or any place at all. If they are so friendly in public what do you think goes on in private?—JUST A DUMB HOUSEWIFE

Dear Dumb Housewife:

Probably nothing—or they'd be more reserved in the presence of others.

I suspect the bearer of all these glad tidings, who happily reports the goings on at the office, is a bit of a trouble-maker. It is a fact that many office workers must do their shopping or banking and see doctors and dentists during their lunch hours, because it's the only time available.

Dear Ann Landers: A friend of my husband's has spent the last two months crying on my neck over a woman he had loved and lost. He begged me to help him get her back, and I agreed.

I didn't realize I had such persuasive powers but after a 20-minute conversation she said, "You are right, Jim is a wonderful person. I shouldn't have broken up with him. Please ask him to call me and we'll pick up where we left off."

When I told Jim of my success he said, "I don't want her now. She has caused me so much grief I could never trust her again." I almost went through the floor.

I told my husband and he was very unsympathetic. He said it served me right for getting involved in other people's affairs.

The woman has been calling to ask why she hasn't heard from Jim. I don't know what to say. After having told her that Jim is madly in love with her I can't bring myself to tell her he has suddenly changed his mind. She will think I am nuts.

Please give me some advice—CUPID FOR LAST TIME

Dear Cupid: It's always a mistake to try to gine together the broken romances of friends. If THEY can't put the pieces together, forget it, Doll.

Tell the woman the truth. She won't think you're nuts. She'll think he's nuts.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 14-year-old girl who would like some suggestions on what to talk about when I am dancing with a boy. I can't think of anything to say and I feel real stupid. Thanks for your help.—MUSIC WITHOUT WORDS

Dear Without: Good dancers don't talk—they just dance. When you see a couple conversing madly on the dance floor it's a safe bet that at least one of them is a very poor dancer.

Each Student's Worthiness Determines Draft Status

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — There's an unreality about student marching and protesting against student deferments.

If a student doesn't think he should be deferred, he has no problem. He can keep from having a deferment simply by not applying for one. No one forces a deferment on him.

If he already has applied for and received a deferment, he may ask to have it canceled.

He can even go further and volunteer for military duty.

There's a harsh surprise likely in store for most hardworking students at any campuses where college officials not to report class standings.

A physically fit student who is not a parent is normally IA unless he secures deferment. He receives that deferment only by convincing his local draft board that he personally should be deferred in the national interest.

Convincing requires proof. Most local draft boards up to now have accepted as sufficient for deferment a statement from a youth's college that he is a full time student doing satisfactory work.

But if draft calls continue high—and run at 30,000 to 40,000 a month or more, regularly—then draft boards obviously are going to have to find more young men.

They'll have to go tougher on college student deferments.

Each student application for deferment is decided individually. While each local draft board makes its own decisions, it obviously must make those decisions in each case on what's in the student's file in its office.

If that file shows nothing about where a student rates in his class, the board is likely to assume this means the young man rates low. Otherwise he'd have gotten his college to send in his class standing.

In the absence of his class standing report, therefore, the local board is probably going to refuse his deferment, unless he has taken the college qualification test and done well.

If a student has not taken the college qualification examination and if there's nothing in his file about class standing, his board has little or nothing on which to base a deferment when comparing him with other full-time students doing satisfactory work.

Thus if a college doesn't send in a young man's class standing, or if a young man does not secure it from his college and send it in himself, no one is hurt except the young man.

The lack of the class standing report doesn't slow up the work of the draft board. It does not prevent the young man from being drafted. If may mean he will be drafted when he wouldn't be otherwise.

Difference In Sexes Outlined By Boyle

By IAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Ever ask a young fellow for a light and then suddenly realize you are talking to a young lady?

Well, don't brood about it, the mistake is a natural one.

People dress so much alike, talk so much alike, and act so much alike, it is small wonder that it is becoming harder to tell one sex from the other.

A keen student of the subject still can note certain key differences that tell him whether a new acquaintance belongs to the male or female gender.

Here are a few examples that may prove helpful:

On a hunting trip if a person is careful never to point a gun at any other member of the party, it is probably a man. If it holds a loaded shotgun between its knees while powdering its nose, it's bound to be a woman.

If it plays jacks it's a girl. If it would rather chuck a rubber ball against the wall, it's a boy.

Does it usually sit with its legs tucked under it? Call it a girl. Does it like to sit with its legs stretched out and the feet crossed? Call it a boy.

Can you pull off the beard it wears at a masquerade ball? That's a lady. But if you tug at the beard and it yells "Ouch!" that's a mild-mannered or, a million to one chance, a female attraction from a circus sideshow.

Does it have to beg for its lunch money every morning? That's a girl. Does it reply each morning, "What are you doing—keeping another woman?" That's a mama.

At a bar, does it take its turn in buying a round? You can bet it's a guy. Does it never buy a round? You can bet it's a girl—or the bartender himself.

HISTORIC STATUS FOR LBJ'S BOYHOOD HOME

A one-story white farm house built in 1886 near Johnson City, Texas, has received recognition as a national historic landmark. The recognition was certified by the presentation of a certificate and bronze plaque by the Department of the Interior to the boyhood home of President Lyndon B. Johnson. The home is typical of farm houses built in the Southwest in the late 19th century. It is owned by Blanco County and administered by the Lyndon B. Johnson Boyhood Home Foundation as an historic house—museum open to the public.

FINDING THE WAY

New Highways to Explore

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

An ancient map of the city in which I live labels a street as "Boundary Street." The interesting fact is that that street is now almost in the inner city. If you want to find your way around Buffalo, you'd better have a more recent map.

In the Library of Congress an old Lewis and Clark map labels the section we now call Ohio as "Coales and ores." On my map this place is the residence of my friends and family. The old map was accurate, but now there are new circumstances to interpret the map.

One can understand the weariness of Mr. Hammond of the New York map company when he complains that maps are out-of-date before they've been printed. It is even necessary to print two maps with different boundaries so that the disputants, Argentina and Chile, can each have a map which pleases their ideas of their boundaries.

Our problem is not only in these road maps. Our difficulty is that we confront a new world with new problems and we've tried to use some of the old signs.

We need to keep our road maps up-to-date.

Once upon a time the map read, "An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth." That was an old-fashioned "Boundary Street." Jesus changed that understanding of moral geography with a new interpretation of moral law.

Once upon a time the hymnals read: "The rich man in his castle, The poor man at the gate, God made them high and lowly, Each one in his estate."

Don't try singing it in any number of today's rebellious countries, for no one section is isolated so that the rich can be certain to remain rich.

Or, think of the people who are trying to use a map labeled, "status quo." To ally ourselves with such maps is to miss the high adventure of discovering new truths about the moral universe in which we live.

The world needs the rebel who is appreciative of his past, unwilling to tear up the old maps, but just as discontented with those twisting and turning paths which avoid coming to grips with life's problems.

The true rebel is the man who is so discontented with the pious do-nothings that he is willing to search out the new road without forsaking the old heritage.

One can adequately measure the journey ahead for humanity. A man's fool if he thinks he can plot his maps that easily. Great highways were carved through the wilderness and these maps are ours.

Now we have some new roads to travel. Are your maps up-to-date?

Put Shoe on Other Foot

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: Our only unmarried child is our daughter of 23. When she is late getting home from dates, I worry so I can't sleep. Both she and her father say she is old enough to look after herself. But how can I help worrying when there are so many car accidents and so much street crime nowadays? But my daughter won't listen. She says I am trying to dominate her life by staying awake till she gets home. I am so tired of arguing.

ANSWER: Then don't argue any more. If you worry out of loving concern for your daughter's safety, don't talk about it any more. Use some action to put an end to this misjudgment of your feeling.

Choose a day when you know your family is going to be at home for the evening. Then, without telling anyone where you're going, slip out of the house before dinner and stay out until 2:30 a.m.

When you get home, everybody will be up. Lights will be on. There'll be impassioned arguments about calling the police. Instead of apologizing for inflicting this worried concern for them, be just as mean and unsympathetic as they've been.

Say, "Why, what's all the fuss about? I'm old enough to take care of myself! Surely you're not trying to dominate my life, are you?"

Sometimes I think that all the parents of this country need 10 years of psychoanalysis in order to recover from the effects of popular psychology.

It has induced such suspicion of every reasonable feeling we have that we can no longer know when one is reasonable and when it isn't. In this dangerous world it is most reasonable to feel concern for a loved child's safety no matter what age he is. But so glib, so indiscriminating is popular psychology with its charges of "domination" and "overprotection" and "infantilizing" children that we can no longer even claim our right to feel concern for his safety. What's even worse, his children pick up its accusing argon and use it to make us ashamed of our loving concern.

Sometimes we have to teach the child the meaning of loving concern by giving him some experience of it. We may have to stay out until he has learned that worry over loved people's safety is not limited to parents. And then we'll begin to receive those phone calls we need as reassurance of his safety.

Keep Dogs Under Wraps

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—How about franks, bacon and cold cuts? Should I rewrap them before storing in the refrigerator?

A—Yes. Cured meats such as those you mention should be kept in the refrigerator in the package they came in, both before and after opening. If the package does not have a reclosable feature, then overwrap it before returning to refrigerator.

Q—Do I have to refrigerate canned hams before I open them?

A—Yes. With the exception of some canned hams weighing less than 3 pounds, refrigerator storage is essential both at the market and at home. "Keep under refrigeration" will be on the label of all canned hams and canned picnics that are not shelf stable.

Nominating Petitions For ASC Committees In Morgan Now Open

States of nominees for membership on ASC community committees now are being established at the ASCS county office. The present ASC committee is making a special effort to encourage the greatest possible participation of eligible voters in the election. Any local resident who is eligible to take part in an ASCS farm program may vote and may hold office as a committee member regardless of race, color, creed or national origin.

Lester E. Martin, chairman, Morgan County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee, says that farmers who are eligible to vote in the committee elections also have the right to nominate as candidates for committee membership any farmer who is eligible and willing to serve. Such petitions, each one nominating one farmer and signed by six or more eligible voters, may be filed at the county office any time before June 27, 1966. Eligible voters may sign as many petitions as they wish.

Additional nominations may be made by the incumbent ASC community and county committees.

Wanted—The Best

"We want the best men available to serve on our ASC committees," Chairman Martin declared, "because the committee system is the backbone of farm programs — those dealing with conservation of soil and water, as well as the price support activities for various commodities. In the last few years, the farmer-elected committee system — unique in the history of agriculture — has been studied intensively by a committee of farm and public administration experts especially appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture for that purpose. The system not only has been retained, but has been greatly strengthened."

Here in Morgan county, Martin points out, 1,884 farmers, 72%, took part last year in one

BIG MACHINERY CAN CUT COSTS!

Machinery is one of the prime reasons why it is more profitable to farm on a large scale. A big farmer must invest a lot in machinery but he has a better chance to control machinery costs per acre.

A recent Ohio study showed that the big farmers invest 2 to 3 times as much as the small farmers but could do his field work at two thirds the cost per acre.

Small farmers in this study invested $7,691 in machinery for each 100 acres operated with costs of $27.36 per acre. The large farmers operated 350 acres for each 100 acres operated with the "smallers." They had invested $18,557 in machinery but their annual costs were $18.30 per acre or $9 less per acre than the small farmer.

This cost difference adds up fast in the profit column. If a small farmer can earn a $25.00 net profit per acre on the crop, the big farmer earns $34.

A mother was giving her son instructions on how to behave at a birthday party for the little girl next door. At one point, the boy shook his head in disagreement. "No," he said, "I think I'll thank Mrs. Chambers for the party as soon as I get there. Last year she locked herself in her room before I left."

Food Aplenty For All Under Free Incentive, Free Market—Shuman

"Even if the U. S. could feed the world, it is not in our interest or the interest of receiving nations to create a situation under which any country becomes increasingly dependent on our charity." This is the view expressed last week by Charles B. Shuman, President, The American Farm Bureau Federation, at the 11th annual convention of the National Plant Food Institute held at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

He said such a development could become very burdensome for U. S. taxpayers and expressed doubt that it would contribute to the attainment of a more peaceful world.

In his address before the fertilizer industry group, Shuman charged that starvation need not be a continuing world threat. There is no shortage of natural resources, he contended, and most nations could feed themselves if their agricultural productivity was raised equal with that of the U.S.

No Need To Starve "The world does not need to starve," he stated, "if underdeveloped nations can be induced to accept the profit incentive method of capital formation — competitive capitalism." Further food aid by U.S. should be conditioned on willingness of recipient nations to replace government management of agriculture with a market price system, he urged. "Foreign aid will be largely wasted unless the U.S. insists that market incentives be allowed to operate in those nations receiving our assistance."

Shuman noted that Farm Bureau's suggestions have been adopted for changing the present Public Law 480 surplus disposal to an aid program with greater emphasis on self help.

"However," he said, "as indicated by the omission of the very important word 'marketing' from the title, the Administration apparently does not intend to permit foreign aid needs to be reflected in better market prices for U.S. farmers. With growing world food needs, there is a wonderful opportunity to phase out unsuccessful domestic farm control programs and, at the same time, strike a telling blow at international socialism."

"Freedom" The administration, he said, continues to talk about "food for freedom" while it "continues to penalize American farmers with acreage controls and low prices caused by dumping of government surplus stocks." Shuman charged that surplus stocks have been used as a means of "knocking down market prices... and forcing farmers into 'voluntary' control programs."

BRIMFUL and running over

By Jim Brim

Every year during the summer months we hear of tragic accidents. Many of these occur when people are taking part in recreational activities. We need to remember that even though we are relaxing we must still think before we act.

We hear of boating and swimming accidents, many of which could have been prevented, or prevented from being serious, if standard accepted safety practices had been followed.

We also have many accidents with farm machinery. Accidents with haying equipment and combines will soon be common. Know your machine, how to operate it, and know yourself before going into the field.

Be particularly careful of doing risky jobs with no one else present and be very careful of permitting youngsters to work by themselves.

Now you should...
...Cultivate.
...Enjoy a picnic.
...Do something with the children.
...Enjoy your flowers.
...Help out-of-school children occupy themselves productively.
...Make hay.
...Get those tomato plants off the ground.
...Don't neglect livestock because of field work. They still need care and you will profit by keeping an eye on them.
...The eye of the master fattens the calf.

The road to success is always under construction. Think about a vacation. They are wonderful and they come in so many different sizes. A trip to see some of our native scenic wonders or some of our historical shrines always means a great deal to children and adults alike.

There are many places one can go to relax and fish a little — places very close to home and places far away.

If you don't feel you can take a longer overnight trip, or for several nights, don't discount the thought of taking a one or two-day vacation trips to state parks, fairs and other places of interest.

Whatever you do don't make the vacation just "a change of scene" for the lady of the house. Sometimes a person doesn't need to be out in the rain to be all wet.

Cass FFA State Farmers

Wayne Gurnsey

Danny Severns

CHANDLERVILLE — Two Cass youths are among the 323 Illinois FFA members who received the FFA State Farmer Degree at the State FFA Convention held June 14-16, 1966 in Urbana.

They are Wayne Allen Gurnsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Gurnsey, a recent graduate of Chandlerville High School, and Danny Severns, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Severns, a senior at Chandlerville High School.

Recipients are selected on the basis of their farming program, leadership and participation in FFA, school and community activities, and income and net worth resulting from their FFA programs.

Wayne's farming program includes a large registered Hereford beef cow herd, some hogs and five acres of corn. An FFA president the past two years, Wayne was recipient of the DeKalb outstanding senior award this year. This fall he will enroll in Illinois State University at Normal where he will major in an agriculture field.

Danny's main project is registered Hampshire hogs and a farming program of corn, watermelons and muskmelons. A chapter reporter for the past two years, Danny was elected chapter vice president for the coming year.

Both boys attended the National FFA convention last October.

Illinois Farm OUTLOOK

FROM BOOM TO BUST?

Some people are becoming concerned about recent economic developments in our nation. They are concerned about such things as inflation, rising land prices, climbing debts and their consequences.

This concern is mostly among the older citizens — those who can remember the crash of 1920, or at least the Great Depression of the 1930s. The younger generation has little knowledge of such things — and consequently no interest.

Right now our industrial machine is running more furiously than ever before. An unusually large number of economic gauges are showing green lights. But fast-running machines can't run forever. There are plenty of things to be concerned about.

There have always been bumps and chuckholes in the road of economic progress, and we have no assurance that our political shock absorbers will protect us from such rough places.

2. Industry may soon have excess capacity. Businessmen have invested heavily in new plants and equipment in recent years. They are spending about $60 billion this year, 75 percent more than the 1959-61 average.

3. Installment (consumer) debt reached $69 billion in March. This figure was 13 percent above that of the year before and 60 percent above 1960.

4. The nation's mortgage debt on real estate at the beginning of this year totaled $342 billion. This amount was 10 percent higher than in the previous year and 65 percent above that of five years ago. The farm mortgage debt on January 1 totaled $21 billion, up 12 percent in one year and 66 percent in five years.

5. Prices of farmland seem to be rising nearly one percent a month. Major contributing factors are the expectation of inflation and the widespread belief that increasing hunger among low-income people of Asia, Africa and Latin America will produce a great cash demand for U.S. farm products.

6. Our nation's gold supply has dwindled from $22 billion in 1950 to only $14 billion. During the same time, outstanding foreign dollar claims have swelled from $9 billion to $29 billion.

7. Since 1964, people in other countries have shown that they do not want to hold large balances of U.S. dollars. When they get more dollars, they want to exchange them for either commodities or gold.

8. Economic conditions in many foreign industrialized nations have become less favorable. Japan is having a recession, and business profits have decreased sharply in many other countries.

These developments and trends surely presage some major changes in economic conditions, but the nature and timing of these changes are not clear.

Lighter Wheat Crop Frets Administration; Some Controls To Go

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Weather's influence on crops during the next 90 days could put a serious strain on the Johnson administration farm programs. The chair occupied by Orville L. Freeman as secretary of agriculture could become uncomfortable.

These prospects have been brought about by a deterioration in the wheat crop during May that took one of the largest monthly slices off the projected yield in many years. Drought and freezes cut the winter wheat crop forecast by 116 million bushels.

As a consequence, the government faces a situation in which — because a one-time record surplus has been largely used up — it may not be able to meet all its commitments for this important grain.

On the basis of an Agriculture Department crop report issued June 10, consumption this year may be 300 million bushels or more in excess of the harvest. Adverse weather between now and September could raise serious problems.

A further loss in the crop would adversely affect administration promises to prevent undue increases in consumer prices of bread and flour.

It could force the administration to trim foreign-aid shipments at a time when the United States has broad commitments to help hungry areas abroad.

Wheat is being grown under a control program that was designed to provide plenty of grain at stable prices. The program was enacted by Congress in 1965 at the behest of the administration and with the backing of a number of farm organizations.

There was a surplus of wheat at the time and the government was in a good position to keep prices stable by selling some of its stocks when prices tended to advance. The plan employed government payments to supplement grower income and to keep producers in line with controls.

But with supplies being reduced sharply, the government is much less able to prevent price increases than in the recent past. The power to hold prices near present levels could all but disappear next winter, particularly should the crop turn out smaller than now indicated.

Flour and bread prices, which already have gone up some, could be expected to rise even more. Consumer complaints could be expected. Such complaints could be loudest from organized labor. It threw its support behind the wheat legislation, largely on the promise that bread prices would not go up.

Foreign Policy Tie-In A tight wheat supply would come at a time when the United States has been telling the world of a broadened Food-for-Freedom program. This program, laid before Congress by President Johnson in February, envisions two types of assistance — shipment of larger quantities of food and the providing of technical aid in assisting needy countries to develop their own agriculture.

Increased U.S. wheat production offers an eventual cure. But this can't come before next year's harvest. The administration already has announced a 15 percent increase in wheat allotments for next year.

This increase was announced before the June crop report showing a sharp drop in wheat prospects. There's a good chance that the new allotments — totaling $9.3 million acres compared with 51 million this year — will be raised again, this time.

They have increased their dairy and hog business as other farm projects have also increased.

According to Ivan Dawdy one of the secrets of the success of a father-son farming arrangement is for the father to give up being boss all the time, and let the son make some of the decisions.

TROUBLE ON WAY TO MOON

By WALTER B. HENDRICKSON JR.

Try, Try Again

Above is a photo of the Surveyor spacecraft that recently made a highly successful soft landing on the moon—the result of the "try, try again" spirit of space engineers.

Last week we recounted the failures in early tests of the Atlas-Centaur, and finally its successful flight. This flight of Atlas-Centaur 2 was only the beginning of the test program. The third flight on July 20, 1964 was almost a complete success but the Centaur failed to burn long enough to reach orbit.

This wasn't too serious since this Centaur, like the first two, carried no payload.

The next Centaur test was to carry a dummy Surveyor into a low parking orbit and then restart and climb into an elliptical orbit. This maneuver would be needed later to reach the moon and planets when Cape Kennedy was not lined up right for the mission.

When the Atlas-Centaur was launched on December 11, 1964 it went into parking orbit but failed to restart.

Trouble Again

The next Centaur, Atlas-Centaur 5, was designed to carry a model Surveyor with a tracking radio to the point in the sky where the moon would be when the first live Surveyor was launched in mid-1966.

Just one second after Atlas-Centaur 5 was launched on March 2, 1965 a 7-inch-square valve in the Atlas first stage failed and the rocket fell back on the pad and exploded in a 100 foot wide fire ball.

After surveying the damage NASA officials decided that it was so severe that Pad 36B could be completed before Pad 36A could be cleaned up. At that time Pad 36B was already 90% completed. Even so the flight of Atlas-Centaur 6 was delayed almost a month.

When Atlas-Centaur 6 was launched on August 11, 1965 it achieved all the objectives that Atlas Centaur 5 had failed to achieve. It placed a Surveyor in a very oval orbit that carried it out to almost twice the distance of the moon.

The Droppers

By Mary Pence Claywell

Poor little tramps . . . you're so fearful and lean;
The ones who abused you, are low-down and mean,
And sneaking, and heartless . . . all this they deserve,
For dropping you out, by the way-side to starve:
Now how would they feel, by the very same act . . .
If they were stuffed into a smothering, old sack,
And dropped out at sun-set, or early at morn,
And left there to wander in wheat field, or corn;
Or yet in a city, where swift, moving feet,
Kept pushing them onward . . . with nothing to eat:
Few doors, Lord, are opened . . . to helpless ones, spurned,
But cat and dog-droppers, have never yet learned,
That if they don't want them, the fact is so true . . .
The strangers who'll take them in . . . Dear Lord, are few!

could be completed before Pad 36A could be cleaned up. At that time Pad 36B was already 90% completed. Even so the flight of Atlas-Centaur 6 was delayed almost a month.

When Atlas-Centaur 6 was launched on August 11, 1965 it achieved all the objectives that Atlas Centaur 5 had failed to achieve. It placed a Surveyor in a very oval orbit that carried it out to almost twice the distance of the moon.

Let's Go Birding

Sunrise Search

By Emma Mae Leonhard

Identifying birds with our ears alone brings some of the greatest pleasures. True, we must sow the seeds of this art; that is, learning to recognize the typical song is the first step. We can use different methods for this bit of training: we can read word descriptions of bird songs, but this method isn't too helpful. Most of the bird songs are too full of music to be described.

We can find bird songs transposed into music composition so that we may reproduce them on different musical instruments. This method can be more helpful.

SUSPECTS

By John Rankin

It was early evening when Eddie Tyler strolled down the street to the home of his pal, Tom Davis. Eddie was fifteen and Tom fourteen.

After a half hour or so of watching television Eddie turned to his pal. "Hey, Tom," he said, "you got any money?" Tom shook his head slowly. "Who, me? Not a cent. Why?" Eddie jingled the pennies in his pocket. "If we had another penny we could play Mother Dugan's juke box," he said wishfully.

"Yeah," Tom nodded, "we can borrow a penny from Mother, maybe."

Near the railroad track on the village's south side a sign hung over the front door of the quaint but comfortable frame building. In bold letters the sign read "Mother Dugan's Place."

Teens' Spot
When Eddie and Tom arrived the place was buzzing with teenage jargon, the juke box blaring out with the latest dance tunes. From a stool back of the counter near the cash register the kindly but sometimes strict Mother Dugan kept close watch over the activities of her youthful patrons.

The portly and white-haired woman dropped from the stool as Eddie stepped to the counter. "What'll it be, kid?" she asked as she smiled.

Eddie tossed the four pennies on the counter. "A nickel for the juke box, Mother," he said nonchalantly.

Mother Dugan's blue eyes squinted as she glanced at the coins. "You need another penny, kid," she snapped. "When?"

"When I get it . . . I mean the first time I'm in."

A faint smile played at the corners of Mother Dugan's mouth as she scooped up the pennies and slapped down a nickel. "I'll trust you kid," she said crisply, "but don't try any slugs in the juke box, mind you."

Pennies To Dollars
The following night when Eddie and Tom swaggered in, each flashing a one dollar bill, Mother Dugan's eyes sparkled with surprise. "From pennies to dollars . . ." she laughed, "Where did you kids get so much money?"

"We cleaned up old Mrs. Carter's yard after school and she paid us a dollar each," Eddie

It was ten o'clock the next morning when Mother Dugan faced police officer Moran across the counter. "Sure, Mike," she nodded, "Eddie and Tom were in last night . . . and yes, each had a dollar that old Mrs. Carter paid them for cleaning up her yard."

"And they also entered Mrs. Carter's house early last night and made off with the tin box the old lady kept her money in," the officer declared.

June, 1866
A Paris writer says the Emperor has had private wires attached to his different telegraphs, and sends private telegrams with his own hands to Count Bismarck at Berlin and Gen. La Marmora at Florence. The London Saturday Review states that about 4,000,000 sermons are preached annually in the United Kingdom, of which number not more than one in a hundred really expresses any degree of thought, or produces any effect upon the understanding of the audience; the balance are therefore an aggregation of the meaningless phrases, more or less grammatical, which either produce a tendency to sleep or a mental desire to argue the other side of the question. Assuming, then, that one hundred persons listen for an average of half an hour, it adds, "It is easy to discover how many years of misery are passed in the aggregate by the congregations of the United Kingdom."

GIVE YOU NEEDED SUPPORT

Have you ever noticed (enviously) how trim some girls look in their ski pants and jump suits. It could be because they are wearing the long-leg (down to the ankle) panty girdle underneath. They are as comfortable as tights and yet give you the support and control you need.

FIT FOR HOME ENTERTAINING

What are sweet dreams made of? Charming feminine shapings and airy, floating fabrics, that's what. Sleepwear creations these days are pretty enough to wear to a ball . . . but, don't. The fabrics, however, are such that they (for the most part) can be worn for at home entertaining.

Reds And Blues

A secret powwow in New York after the NFL meetings in Washington led to the pro grid peace, with a group of other owners convincing dissidents Wellington Mara of New York and Lou Spadia of San Francisco that merger was the only way out of the dilemma created when the Giants signed ex-Buffalo Bill Pete Gogolak.

And don't kid yourself—Pete Rozelle, who comes out as the all as the knight on the white charger, was on shaky grounds because of l'affaire Gogolak until he brought about the peace.

Frank Robinson

A team in shambles, from a morale standpoint, is the Cincinnati Reds. And the players themselves trace it all back to the trade of Frank Robinson to Baltimore last winter. "He was the leader," said reserve outfielder Art Shamsky. "He showed us how to play the game. When he went down to second base, he'd be willing to cut a man down."

Not helping the Reds, either, is the shaky platooning system which presented 38 different lineups in their first 54 games, including five different first basemen and four different third basemen.

Dick Weber, the super bowler, is off to Japan with his wife and four children for a bona fide vacation of six weeks. Dick can afford the cease-fire. He's the biggest money winner ever on the kegging circuit. He also liked a case of lung cancer last year. Even with time off for that, Dick pulled in $125,000 in earnings in 1955. Heavyweight Oscar Bonavena was trapped in Italy by a horde of photographers (papparazzi). "Say 'cheese!'" they commanded the Argentinean with the Beatie haircut. "Pro-volume," said Bonavena.

The tennis pros' tourney at Forest Hills under the VASS scoring system was a travesty. The pros didn't like it. The fans didn't like it. And the promoters didn't like it. The announced daily attendance of 5,000 was compiled by counting eyes (or maybe toes). And the players complained, "It takes the endurance out of tennis." . . . A simple case of "love" lost. . . . Buzz around the Detroit clubhouse is that Charley Dressen, out of commission with another heart attack, is unlikely ever to resume his manager's role with the Tigers.

It's not sure how good a coach Army got when it elevated Tom Cahill to head man, but at least he's got a good track record when it comes to picking the right people for the job. Recent stories out of Viet Nam have detailed the valor of Capt. Bill Carpenter, the former All-American who was captain of the Army football team and the original "lonesome" end. It was Cahill, then coaching prep school football, who originally sent Carpenter to West Point—and wound up following the grid star there as a plebe coach.

Cahill, incidentally, received a personal visit recently from Paul Dietzel, his predecessor, who skipped the Point to become head coach at South Carolina. Simple point of visit: Dietzel wanted to offer his congratulations to Cahill.

Between you'n' me, the Atlanta Braves' front office is determined not to fire Bobby Bragan at all costs as manager during the season. Feel it would hurt their image. Now all they've got to do is tell it to the players.

Little League

The Giants nipped the Dodgers with a run in the bottom of the sixth, 4-3, while the Tigers rode two big innings to a 7-3 margin over the Yanks in Elks Little League contest Friday night.

The Giants scored three times in the bottom of the first to lead until the Dodgers knotted the game with a pair in the fifth. A single run in the bottom of the sixth decided the affair. Both teams pounded out eight hits.

The winning Tigers used a four-run second and a three-run fourth for their victory.

Terry Frye's five-hitter and a sound defense allowed Rotary to hand Lions its first defeat of the season, a 3-2 decision, in Colt League play Friday night at Nichols Park. Clark's Super pounded Contractors, 13-2, in the Pony League contest.

Rotary got only three hits off losing pitcher Duane Mounts, who fanned 11 and faced only 25 men in the six innings. Lions had men on in each inning but managed only single runs in the first and fifth. Ed Winger homered for the winners, and Jim Seymour and Roger Stewart slugged triples.

Contractors scored five times in each of the opening two frames and was never threatened. The winners got six hits and took advantage of four walks in the first two frames.

Matson Shatters

Own Shot Record

In NCAA Field

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Randy Matson of Texas A&M shattered his own one-day-old shotput meet record on every one of his four tosses, while three defending champions were dethroned in the NCAA Track and Field Meet Friday.

A second NCAA record was established in the discus trials by Southern California's Gary Carlson, who flipped the platter 190-1/2.

The old record was 190-1/2. One of the oldest in the NCAA books, it was set by Southern California's Sam Iness in 1953. Matson's best in the shotput finals was 67-11/2, about 2 1/2 feet better than his record qualifying toss of 65-6/4 Thursday.

Somewhat of a disappointment was Tommie Smith of San Jose State.

Smith finished second in the 100-yard dash in which Nebraska's Charlie Greene retained his title with a surging finish to match the meet record of 9.3.

Both Greene and Smith won trial heats in 9.3 Thursday, matching the meet record previously shared by Bobby Morrow of Abilene Christian and Frank Budd of Villanova.

In the long jump finals, Smith placed third with 24-8/4 behind new champion Rainer Stenius of California State, who won with 25-1/4.

Matson, who holds the world shotput mark of 70-7/4, topped his one-day-old NCAA mark of 65-6/4 on each of four tries Friday. He fouled on the first and last throws of his six attempts.

The brawny Matson tossed 67-11/2 on his first legal heave. Then he followed with 66-6, 66-10/4 and 66-5/4 before fouling on his last try. The previous NCAA record was 64-7 set by Southern California's Dallas Long in 1962.

Defending shotput titlist, Oregon's Neal Steinhauer, finished second with 64-1/2, still better than his 62-4 winning toss last year when Matson was sidelined by a leg injury.

The other successful defending champion was hammer thrower John Fiore of Boston College, who retained his NCAA crown with a 201-3/2.

Cubs Sign Three

Collegiate Aces

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Cubs signed Dale Ford, national collegiate home run champion of the past season and two other collegians to baseball contracts Friday.

Gene Lawing, director of farm clubs for the Cubs, said Ford was selected by the club in this month's draft of free agents.

Lawing said Ford probably will be assigned to a farm club. The other players signed were outfielders Ronald Person, 19, of Phoenix College, and Elza-tous Peters, 22, of Southern University, Houston, Tex.

The victory went to veteran Jack Sanford, 7-2, who took over for Marcelino Lopez with two out and two Kansas City runs home in the second. The 37-year old right-hander limited the Athletics to one hit until removed for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

The Angels gained a 2-2 tie in the sixth on Jim Fregosi's triple and Ed Kirkpatrick's sacrifice fly. They scored their first run off Hunter in the fifth on Rodgers' single and Cardenal's triple.

Say Brown Might Quit Pro Football

CLEVELAND (AP)—It appeared unlikely Friday that full-back Jim Brown will be on hand Sunday, July 17, at Hiram, Ohio, when the Cleveland Browns begin training for the National League Football season. If he isn't it will cost him money.

Art Modell, Browns owner, issued a statement Friday saying that if Brown doesn't show July 17 "I will have no alternative but to suspend him without pay."

Brown is in England playing an important role in the filming of a motion picture about World War II.

He is also in the last year of a three-year contract he signed with the Browns in 1964.

Modell has been trying without success for several weeks to learn the plans of his ace full-back. Unable to reach Brown Thursday in phone calls, Modell talked to Ken Hyman, executive producer of the picture, and told Hyman to advise Brown suspension would be the penalty for reporting late to the football club.

"Might Quit Game" A news release from the motion picture company (MGM) earlier this month said Brown "honestly doesn't know if he will play professional football this year or ever." The release added that he would make no decision about it until September.

Modell said Hyman in Thursday's phone conversation confirmed the quotes as correct and said the picture would not be completed until early or mid-September. Hyman said further that Brown had such an integral part that it would be impossible to shoot around him so he could leave England ahead of the rest of the cast. Brown has been there since early May.

In London, Hyman said Friday there was no chance that Brown could finish his movie role in time to report to the opening of the Browns' camp.

"Production First" "We will do our best to cooperate with Jim and the Cleveland Browns, but from our point of view the production must come first," the producer said. The player was not available for comment.

Suspension of Brown without pay would cost him upward of $5,000 a month, if he reported, but unofficial figure of $65,000 is correct for his annual pay from the Browns. Modell pointed out that Brown and several other players are paid on a 12-month basis, in contrast to most other professional athletes whose salaries don't go into effect until the season begins.

Brown, 30, has said several times that the 1966 season, his 10th with Cleveland, would be his last. He said this prior to the 1965 season and later qualified it by indicating he might stay on until the club had a replacement ready.

Louis 6-5 Friday night. John Callison doubled with one out in the ninth but was out trying to score on Rich Allen's single. Allen took second on the play and, after Don Dennis walked Bill White intentionally, Taylor singled to right field, driving in Allen.

Pinch hitter Bob Tolan broke a 4-4 tie in the seventh inning with his first major league homer off Philadelphia starter Larry Jackson.

But the Phillies tied it again in the eighth when Taylor singled, stole second and raced home on Hal Woodeshick's wild pitch.

NEW YORK (AP)—Mel Stottlemyre pitched a five-hitter and Bobby Richardson rapped three key hits as the New York Yankees defeated Detroit 5-2 Friday night.

Stottlemyre, bringing his record 59-66, blanked the Tigers on three hits until the eighth inning when Dick McAuliffe led off with a single and Al Kaline hit a two-run homer deep into the lower left-field stands.

Richardson singled in the fourth for the first New York hit, went to second on the first of three walks to Mickey Mantle and scored on Joe Pepitone's ground rule double.

Richardson's double in the fifth drove in the third run in the inning and brought John Podres on for Earl Wilson. Roger Maris singled in another run, and the last one scored on Pepitone's ground out.

Smith's Triple Keeps Streaking Angels Going, 4-2

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Willie Smith socked a two-run triple in the seventh inning Friday night breaking a tie and sending the California Angels to their sixth straight victory, a 4-2 decision over Kansas City.

Smith's shot to left-centerfield with Bob Rodgers and Jose Cardenal on base tagged the loss on Jim (Catfish) Hunter, now 5-6.

The victory went to veteran Jack Sanford, 7-2, who took over for Marcelino Lopez with two out and two Kansas City runs home in the second. The 37-year old right-hander limited the Athletics to one hit until removed for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

The Angels gained a 2-2 tie in the sixth on Jim Fregosi's triple and Ed Kirkpatrick's sacrifice fly. They scored their first run off Hunter in the fifth on Rodgers' single and Cardenal's triple.

Robinsons Again Spark Baltimore To 5-3 Decision

BOSTON (AP)—Baltimore's Robinson sluggers, Frank and Brooks, accounted for five runs with homers in powering the American League-leading Orioles to a 5-3 victory over Boston Friday night.

Frank Robinson tied Boston's George Scott for the AL home run lead by cracking his 17th after Jerry Snyder singled in the third inning.

Brooks hiked his league-leading runs-batted-in total to 53 by lining his 11th homer after singles by Luis Aparicio and Snyder in the fifth.

The two long blasts enabled southpaw Steve Barber to pick up his sixth victory in eight decisions. Barber allowed five hits, struck out eight and walked three in seven innings before letting relief specialist Stu Miller finish.

Border Patrol Team Wins Top Honors At Shoot

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—A New York City policeman and a four-man U.S. Border Patrol team won top honors Friday in the National Police Pistol Championships concluded at Indiana University.

Frank May, whose department had not only the individual titleholder but the team champion last year, salvaged honors for the New York police by winning the men's individual crown with a 1463 score out of a possible 1500 for five rounds of shooting.

May dethroned teammate Albert Syage as champion. The runnerup was E. W. Hilden of Oceanside, Calif., firing for 1438. Hilden also scored 1463, but May was awarded first because of 68 shots placed in the central target to 56 for Hilden.

Third place went to Roy Huntley, El Paso, Tex., also a Border Patrol entry.

The women's individual championship went Thursday to Mrs. Lucy Chambliss, a firearms instructor for the Winterhaven, Fla. police department.

Succeeding the New York City police as team champion was the Border Patrol team with 2331 of a possible 2440.

Second was the Columbus, Ohio, Police Department with 2305. The Kansas City, Mo., Police Department was third with 2289.

The Chicago Police Department team composed of Sgt. Gorm Petersen and patrolmen Spencer Holmes, Joseph Celovsky and Larry Krause finished 23rd, beating out 17 other police agencies in its first time in the national championships.

The team's combined score was 2197.

In individual competition, for which there were no ranking beyond the first three positions eligible for awards, the Chicago shooters scored in this order: Petersen 1422 of a possible 1500, Celovsky 1417, Holmes 1413, Patrolman Donald Brown 1294, Krause 1259, and Lt. William Marschall 1241.

A RETIRING GUY—Los Angeles' Jim Gilliam found himself without a glove when called out of retirement this spring. Last year, after retiring for the second time, Gilliam's glove was sent to the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y.

Bressoud Powers Mets To 2 Wins

CINCINNATI (AP)—Eddie Bressoud slammed a three-run homer in the first game and drove in both runs with a single in the nightcap as the New York Mets twice battled from behind and defeated Cincinnati, 6-5 and 2-1 Friday night.

Bressoud's bases-loaded single in the seventh inning of the second game spoiled the Cincinnati debut of Hank Fischer, who came to the Reds from Atlanta in a trade for Joey Jay.

The Mets scored in the fourth inning of the nightcap when Vada Pinson led off with a single, stole second, moved to third on a throwing error and came home on a sacrifice by Art Shamsky.

The Mets' Jack Fisher held the Reds to five hits and picked up the victory, his fourth in 10 decisions.

The victory in the first game went to Bob Shaw, now 3-4, while reliever Don Nottebart, 1-2, was charged with the defeat.

CHICAGO (AP)—Veteran first baseman Jim Gentile, assigned to the minors last Monday by the Houston Astros for disciplinary reasons, has decided to report to Oklahoma City.

Gentile indicated earlier he would quit baseball rather than report to the Astro farm club in the Pacific Coast League.

"I love the game, and just can't quit now," Gentile said. "I hope I can perform well enough at Oklahoma City that another major league club will want my services."

Gentile, 32, has paid a $250 fine for tossing his bat during an argument with an umpire in last Sunday's game between Houston and the Chicago Cubs.

The quick-tempered player also was given a five-day suspension, which ends at noon Saturday.

ATLANTA (AP)—Shortstop Gene Alley started key double plays with the bases loaded in the sixth and seventh innings Friday night, helping Pittsburgh to a 4-2 victory over Atlanta.

Winning pitcher Don Cardwell gave up only two hits in the first five innings, but he weakened in the sixth as the Braves loaded the bases on two singles and a walk. The right-hander, however, got Felipe Alou to ground to Alley, who started the inning-ending double play.

Cardwell served a home run pitch to Mack Jones in the seventh and gave up singles to Gene Oliver and Gary Geiger before Pete Mikkelsen replaced him. Denis Menke loaded the bases with another single, but Ed Mathews bounced to Alley, who stepped on second and fired to first, again ending the inning.

Nicklaus Blasts Speed-Up Rules During U.S. Open

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—An outraged Jack Nicklaus accused the U.S. Golf Association of ruining the tempo of his game with "speed-up policemen hanging around my neck."

"I have very seldom gotten as angry as I did out there," Nicklaus fumed after taking a 71 Friday for a 142 total after two rounds of the U.S. Open Golf Tournament at the Olympic Club.

The crux of the matter is an order from the USGA to speed up play. They instituted local option rules for this tournament, requiring a golfer to putt out continuously and allowing him to clean and mark his ball only once.

But that wasn't Nicklaus' complaint. "One of their officials came up to us and told us we were playing too slow and that we'd have to increase our speed," he said.

"And I got four bogeys in a row right after that. I can't recall when I've done that before," he said.

"If there was an official there," said Joe Dey, executive director of the USGA, "Nicklaus brought it on himself by slow play."

Nicklaus, who played with Bruce Devlin and Tony Lema, said it took him 4 hours and 22 minutes to play the round.

"I'll admit we're not the quickest players on the tour," Nicklaus said. "But when you speed up, you ruin your tempo, and, in the long run, you play slower."

In contrast, Arnold Palmer said he was pleased with quick play. "We played in about 3 1/2 hours," Palmer said after a second-round 66 that gave him a share of the lead. "I can't remember a more pleasurable two rounds of golf in many years."

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bob Saverine led off the 11th inning with a pinch-hit double and scored on an error by Pedro Gonzalez, giving Washington a 5-4 victory over Cleveland Friday night.

After Saverine's double, Bob Allen walked Ken Hamlin intentionally and Ken McMullen beat out an infield single, loading the bases.

Jim King then grounded to second baseman Gonzalez, who threw to the plate trying to force Saverine. But the throw was low, and Saverine scored the winning run.

Gentile indicated earlier he would quit baseball rather than report to the Astro farm club in the Pacific Coast League.

In our column we have occasionally reviewed hands played by the late George Reith, one of the few older generation auction players who was able to become as great at contract as in the earlier game.

His oldest son, Rear Adm. George Reith, U.S.N. retired, writes us occasionally. Today he comments on our hand of April 30. When played some 30 years ago each declarer in a team match played at six spades. South started ace of hearts, ace of diamonds, king of diamonds and came to a halt when West trumped the king. One West led the queen of hearts, whereupon his opponent made the rest of the tricks by means of a three-suit squeeze. The other West shifted to a club, broke up the squeeze and set the contract.

George points out that there is a way to make seven against that original heart lead. Of course, it does require knowledge of the location of all the cards but such an interesting play is worth repeating the hand.

South wins the heart lead and plays a spade to dummy's queen. Then he plays his ace and king of diamonds, ruffs a diamond with dummy's deuce of trumps, ruffs back to his hand with a heart and runs off all his trumps.

This play leads to the same squeeze that developed when West ruffed the diamond king and led a second heart.

On the last trump lead West must hold on to the jack of hearts and can't keep his king of clubs guarded. Then the ten of hearts is thrown from dummy so that dummy retains the ace and jack of clubs. Now East must unguard his queen of clubs to hang on to a diamond. "Welcome aboard, Admiral."

Gone With Cream On Top Of Milk

What Became Of Plain Doughnut?

EDITOR'S NOTE — Maine-born John Roderick has been a foreign correspondent for The Associated Press for the last 21 years. And it has been seven years since he was in the United States on vacation. Here are the observations of a slightly puzzled native son.

By JOHN RODERICK
NEW YORK (AP) — What has become of the plain old-fashioned doughnut mother used to make?

It has, alas, gone with the wind, along with the two inches of rich cream which once adorned the top of the milk bottle.

When a man has been away from America for seven years, as I have, his thoughts as he comes home are on many things.

I confess unashamedly that Maine lobsters, Boston baked beans and crisp, hot doughnuts washed down by a cool glass of creamy milk figured in my dreams.

I found the beans and lobsters more or less as they once were. But I wandered down Broadway and up Main Street in a fruitless search for the plain doughnut.

The doughnut of my day has married and remarried and produced a star-spangled crop of offspring called "donuts" of all colors, conditions and classes. They are glazed with a frightening variety of red, blue and green icing, impregnated with a thousand exotic flavors.

I created a sensation by asking for a plain doughnut.

I am appalled at the tons of calories Americans daily cram into their mouths.

Friends already alarmingly overweight munch on chocolates, wolf down a malted milk, or tuck away a pie a la mode between meals.

They try to wash away these sins of gluttony with a glass of skim milk. For today skim milk, which we as children regarded with faint contempt as something for hogs, has become a prima donna in fancy dress, beckoning to the fat because it has fewer calories.

I have been struck by the extraordinary contrasts, greater I believe than those I have noted among the Japanese among whom I have lived since 1959.

Never have I seen so much affluence, so many smart homes, apartments, automobiles and public buildings. But beside them there are shocking slums.

Take the train from Boston to New York and look out the window as it moves through the outskirts of the big cities on the route.

Contrasted to the neat, compact Japanese models they seem grotesque.

After the doughnut and the automobile, I stood back aghast at urban renewal. It has changed the face of America. In my home town, great cavities have appeared on Main Street and shopping centers have proliferated on the outskirts.

All this may well be for the good if we are replacing the old with something graceful and vital. But what about the 33-story apartment building in New York which I saw soon after arrival?

"Isn't urban renewal wonderful!" I exclaimed. "They're taking down that ugly old building."

"Are you crazy?" my host asked. "They're not taking it down. They're putting it up."

Today's American, I believe, is taller mentally and even spiritually than ever before. But he often is assailed by waves of mediocrity, compressed into molds of conformity, invited to lose himself to forget his obligations.

What he needs is the plain doughnut.

FOR A BETTER HAIRDO

A setting pattern means a better hairdo. Collect sketches of hairdos you like and follow the way the rollers are placed. The longest rollers are for the smoothest hairdos; medium rollers are for more body and curl. Use short rollers for temple hair and bangs and where there is no room for large rollers. Small, thin rollers go at the nape of the neck. Too, too short hair needs pin curls.

NICHOLS PARK LADIES DAY GOLF NEWS

Mary Lois Koster

I once heard a man say that the way to ruin a good morning walk was to take along a set of golf clubs. After last Tuesday I am inclined to agree. After my miserable round I dropped by to comfort Alpha Witham, our publicity chairman, who had some difficulty climbing a fence at the Carlinville Country Club. When I looked at her foot I realized it would be a while before she would be back playing golf. After you read this column you'll realize that it will be even longer before I become a writer.

Nevertheless the weatherman provided a most delightful morning for the first round of the Early Bird Tournament.

The results are as follows:

Lois Hayes over Fran Chumley.

Liz Dowland over Marge Howard.

Betty Brown over Helen Little.

Lucille Eberhardt over Sandy Winner.

Toni Rayburn over Suzie Tucker.

Edna Greenier over Dorothy Busche.

Dorothy Walker over Sarah Warner.

Della Birdsell over Liz Topf.

Alda Sether over Betty Price.

The second round will begin Tuesday, June 21. If you are unable to play your match that day you will have until Tuesday, June 28. Pairings are as follows:

Lois Hayes-Liz Dowland.

Betty Brown-Evelyn Cruzan.

Lucille Eberhardt-Toni Rayburn.

Edna Greenier-Dorothy Walker.

Della Birdsell-Alda Sether.

In addition to the tournament our regular event was low and high putts for each flight. Liz Dowland won low putts, Fran Chumley won high putts in the first flights. Second flight winners were: Edna Greenier low, Sandy Winner high. Edna Greenier has two new balls in her golf bag as she received a ball for her clever chip in on hole #2.

Check your program books for the event this week. Due to a change in Guest Day at Virginia, our June 28th program will be used this week, and the following week we will play at Virginia.

Pairings for the non-tournament players this week are: Mary Ellen Glisson - Fran Chumley-Rigi Fay.

Betty Meyer - Betty Dyer - Marge Howard-Helen Little.

Suzie Tucker-Sarah Warner - Sandy Winner.

Dorothy Busche-Betty Price-

TAKE TAN IN STAGES

Build a sun tan slowly and ward off excessive skin dryness. How do you do this? Observe the rules of sunbathing and limit your first exposures to 10 to 20 minutes a day until your skin shows some color. Burning and a too deep tan—like a Bermuda mahogany—cause permanent damage to your skin. The few compliments you get from your friends are not worth the early aging such a deep tan heralds for your complexion.

Verna Dean Hayes-Mildred Schmalz.

If you are paired and unable to play please call the Pro Shop, 245-2618, so necessary changes can be made. If you have not joined us yet, come on out, new members always welcome.

Those of you who signed up for the Jacksonville Country Club Guest Day, remember this Wednesday, June 22, is the day.

Now, I'm left with mixed emotions about next Tuesday morning. I could forget the golf and caddy for my ex-opponent, Liz Dowland, or have coffee with my crippled buddy, Alpha.

Would you believe, I've made my decision already—come 8:30 Tuesday, I'll be at Nichols Park, with golf balls that float!

—Marge Howard

JACKSONVILLE INSTITUTIONS RECOGNITION WEEK

A Salute...

Jacksonville's history is closely identified with its institutions. Schools and colleges played an important part in the growth of the community. Educated in Jacksonville have been men and women who later in life became important figures who helped shape the course of events in medicine, science, state, and national government.

Illinois pioneer legislatures, recognizing that education was a part of the community life, placed three state institutions in Jacksonville. The Illinois School for the Deaf has grown to one of the largest and most progressive schools for the hard-of-hearing in the nation. Illinois Braille and Sight Saving School has led the way in providing new concepts for teaching those who have lost their sight. The Jacksonville State Hospital has always been the leader in Illinois' efforts to treat those with mental disease and provide care for the veterans of this nation's wars.

The two hospitals of the community have cared for the sick and kept abreast of the discoveries of modern medicine. They have expanded their respective facilities to keep up with the area's growth.

Jacksonville can be proud of its institutions and the men and women who are the administrators and employees. Their contribution to Jacksonville, as in the past, will continue to make our city grow.

History Of Progress, Service Goes On At Holy Cross Hospital

JAMES VICKERS, chief laboratory technologist for the hospital, is shown operating a recently purchased Coulter Counter. The blood cell counting device is an important addition to the hospital's research facilities.

LOOKING TOWARD FUTURE NEEDS, the hospital has recently completed several projects to provide for better patient care. One such project was the renovation of the former obstetrical department to accommodate 23 adults and children.

On October 22, 1966 Holy Cross Hospital, which was known as Our Saviour's Hospital until June 1964, will mark the completion of seventy years of service to the Jacksonville community. This span has been characterized by continual growth and progress, attempting not only to keep pace with the demands of population and medical advancements, but also to prepare for the future needs of the community.

Additions to the physical plant, an increasing staff, installation of more and improved equipment, and extension of services rendered have all been part of this theme of growth and change.

Right In Step
Historically, the growth of Holy Cross has paralleled that of the community itself. As the needs and demands of the population increase, so must the medical facilities.

According to the annual report in 1965, "one hired man, three girls, and one night nurse," in addition to eight Sisters, cared for 131 patients. At the end of the present fiscal year, 4,159 patients will have been served by a staff of 301, including 14 Sisters.

Work Begun
The history of Holy Cross Hospital dates from 1896, when Mr. Charles Routt, a prominent businessman in Jacksonville, left a bequest of $12,000 for the establishment of a hospital. Bishop Spaulding of Peoria recommended the Sisters of the Holy Cross for the task.

The Sisters accepted the offer, and on August 26, 1896, Sister Lydia, accompanied by seven Sisters, arrived in Jacksonville to convert the former home of Governor Richard Yates into a hospital.

Considerable repair work and installation of equipment tiringly occupied the Sisters, but in a few months the hospital was ready for occupancy.

On October 23, the first patients, three motherless children suffering from typhoid fever, were admitted. Nine days later, the first baby, Thomas Hayden, was born at the hospital. This baby was not only the first but the only hospital newborn for several years, as hospital births at that time were a rarity.

Expansion
The first home was soon overcrowded, and in 1898 an addition was built with the generous contribution of Mr. William Routt. The expansion brought the hospital capacity to 19 rooms, including an operating room.

Although there was no organized medical staff during these years, approximately 22 doctors gave their support and service to the hospital. Increased need for laboratory research necessitated the services of a pathologist. Dr. Garm Norbury generously assumed and ably fulfilled this responsibility until a full-time pathologist was acquired.

A few more nurses were added to the staff, with lectures by the doctors being the sole means of training new personnel since teachers, textbooks and time were limited.

Training School
The training school was initiated in 1908, but not until 1918 was a formally organized class established. Three nurses graduated from the school in 1921, with the first graduation exercises for three nurses and four Sisters held in 1923.

An Alumnae Association was founded in the following year, which has maintained close ties with the hospital and given moral and financial support throughout the years.

As the hospital grew, the inevitable overcrowding of facilities occurred. A second wing was added for this reason in 1922 increasing the hospital bed capacity to 112.

The early history notes the procurement of modern X-ray equipment as early as 1916, but the first radiologist was not acquired until 1931.

A ladies' aid society gave generous support to the hospital in the early years and was the forerunner of the Holy Cross Auxiliary, organized in 1950. Under continued able leadership, this organization has contributed generous financial and service assistance to the institution.

Advisory Board
Recognizing the need for community understanding and support of the hospital's present and proposed objectives and problems, an invitation was extended to a group of civic-minded individuals to form a Lay Advisory Board. This was also formed in 1950, with Dr. Victor Sheppard of MacMurray College as its first president.

This board was particularly valuable in 1957 when the hospital launched its biggest expansion project—the construction of a new east wing—This $1,250,000 building was fittingly dedicated to Dr. F. A. Norris, whose continued and devoted support earned the lasting gratitude of the Sisters.

The Yates mansion, the section built by the Sisters, and the 1899 addition were all razed to make the new wing possible. In addition to an increased bed capacity of 120, the wing provided a completely new outpatient and emergency room facility, new laboratory and radiology departments, and a new chapel and chaplain's quarters.

Present Service
Holy Cross is one of the major health agencies within the community. Besides the adults and children admitted for medical, surgical and pediatric care, an increasing volume of persons utilize the outpatient and emergency room facilities daily.

New equipment, to match the advancements of medicine, and an enlarged staff to furnish better patient care have been continually added to the growing physical plant. Examples of recent additions would be installation of new equipment for physical therapy, and a new radioactive isotope instrument to diagnose certain types of disease. An extensive study is also underway concerning the possible utilization of the delivery room suite as an intensive care unit.

Aside from a general increase in hospital personnel, the management team has been enlarged. Four new full-time division directors include a personnel director, a purchasing agent, a patient relations director and a director of volunteers.

Economic Impact
The economic impact of Holy Cross Hospital is vast and lies in its payroll and numerous goods and services purchased locally. Telephone, electric power, gas, water, food supplies, dairy products, drugs, building materials, office and printing supplies, and service of local florists and newspapers are but a small part of the total impact.

Total payroll of the last fiscal year was in excess of $982,000, and went to residents of both Morgan and surrounding counties. The annual operating expense, exclusive of the payroll but including local purchases in the amount of $475,000, was $1,458,000.

The total current assets of the hospital (including buildings, equipment and supplies) total $2,400,000. With the completion of the renovation of the west wing, the recent addition to the laundry and other projects, the worth of the property will be increased by $140,000.

Objectives
Holy Cross Hospital unceasingly endeavors to fulfill its role as a Catholic hospital by striving to meet a set of seven objectives:

As an integral part of the mission of the Church, it recognizes the total composition of man. Its concept of patient care includes the total man—his physical, mental, emotional and spiritual needs.

Its objective is to maintain and restore health, and to serve all men in charity, irrespective of race, creed or financial status.

It utilizes available principles of management in its organizational structures, and endeavors to provide those it serves with the best possible care through best available resources.

The governing board obligates itself to select a competent medical staff and to give them the cooperation and assistance necessary to practice good medicine.

It provides a competent and adequate staff of nurses and other technical personnel and in justice insures their continued competence. In the spirit of justice and in respect for the worth and dignity of the personnel, it works toward a program of compensation and working conditions based on social justice.

It uses any monies received for patient care or donations for the use of the hospital.

Recognizing that it is a community facility, it participates in community planning for health and medical care facilities and attempts to operate in accord with the needs of the community it serves.

In accordance with this last objective, the future of Holy Cross is significantly related to the future expansion of the Jacksonville community. Population trends, development of residential areas, enlargement of present, or construction of new industries, will affect not only the community, but the growth and type of service Holy Cross should render as well.

Coordinated pooling of the local, county and state health agencies in this area is an important long range program in which Holy Cross will take a large part in bringing continued service to the community.

THE RICHARD YATES MANSION (L) is the historical forerunner of the present Holy Cross Hospital, pictured at right. Deed to the old Yates residence passed to the eight Sisters of the Holy Cross who founded the hospital in 1896, after the structure had been used as a Motherhouse by the Dominican Sisters. The building originally constituted the entire hospital plant, but later served as a residence hall and classroom building. Construction of the new east wing forced the razing of the historic Yates home in 1956.

IBSSS Pioneering Education For The Visually Handicapped

France

THE BRAILLE WRITER is a necessary aid in the lives of students who are blind or have only limited vision. The girl pictured above is listening to a French lesson on tape as part of her homework assignment.

RAISED MAPS and other devices which utilize the sense of touch are used extensively to augment the child's learning and opportunities are provided whereby the child will secure many first-hand experiences. Miss Rose McGuire is looking on (above), as Betty Rose studies a raised globe.

The Illinois Braille and Sight Saving School was the third state-supported institution founded in Jacksonville. The school was established by the state legislature in 1849, and has just completed its 117th year of continuous operation.

Throughout its history, the school has been a pioneer in the education of children with major visual limitations, and serves as the source of education for 210 students, approximately one-half of the blind children living in Illinois.

The residential school is open to persons between the ages of five and 21 years. Whenever possible, education of the visually handicapped is conducted near the child's home.

Programs

The course of study at IBSSS provides for children enrolled in kindergarten through four years of high school, with the academic program corresponding to the curriculum prescribed for all children in Illinois. Methods of instruction include a wide variety of techniques and facilities specially adapted to provide the child with the skills necessary for independent living and the continuation of his preparation toward suitable vocational goals.

Three classes are conducted for children who have difficulty learning as quickly as the average child. A "special services" department, which was first opened in October 1957, provides for educable deaf-blind children and other multiply handicapped children who can benefit from the program.

Time Table

Classes are scheduled during the school year to correspond with public school sessions. Thanksgiving, Christmas and spring vacation, as well as summer vacation, are compulsory for all students. Parents are encouraged to take their children home for weekends whenever possible, and visit the children at the school.

Social workers in the Department of Social and Child Care Services work directly with students and their parents to help both with the adjustment problems associated with the child's physical handicaps, their separation from home, and their on-going participation in group living. The most effective manner of handling the children's problems may then be determined by staff members. The cottage life supervisor, working in this department, functions directly with house-parents and students regarding activities and behavior during out-of-school hours. Children participate in an organized recreational program on evenings and weekends, designed to help them use their leisure time happily, constructively and creatively.

Transfer Program

A recently undertaken experiment at IBSSS is the transfer program which provides for children, who have adjusted to their handicap, to return to their public school in their home town. Several students who attended the school in past years will be taking part in regular school systems throughout the state next year.

All children who have medical consent participate in the physical education program, whose activities and teaching techniques are geared to the abilities and interests of the children. Activities range from calisthenics and simple games to such competitive sports as swimming, wrestling and track.

Vocational Training

The need for vocational and every day training is of the utmost importance. Industrial arts courses for boys provide opportunities to develop pre-vocational skills in well-equipped shops, while girls are required to take domestic science courses designed to improve their sewing and cooking skills. Boys at the school are trained to operate many types of shop equipment, including saws, wood and metal turning lathes, and drills. Wood working is one of the most popular activities in the vocational center, with many fine pieces of carpentry resulting from hours of painstaking work.

Travel Training

The ability to travel independently is a must for successful blind persons. Consequently, all blind students are required to enroll in the Travel Training course before they graduate from high school.

In Travel Training, the student is taught to use a white cane properly, to interpret auditory clues, to travel in a congested business district, and to cross streets in traffic. To fulfill the requirements of the course, a student must be able to travel to downtown Jacksonville, locate several business establishments, and return to the campus without assistance. The music department offers voice, instrument and piano instruction. Students also have opportunities to participate in informal music groups, several of which have played for numerous dances and gatherings within the community.

Well-balanced meals are provided in the centralized dining hall where the children are taught table skills and manners. Special diets are adjusted to meet individual health requirements, while snacks and refreshments add to special occasions.

Health Service

The health of the students is under the supervision of a doctor, plus full-time nurses on duty at the health center. In addition, an ophthalmologist, a dentist and other consultants care for the medical needs of the children.

Aside from its function as a school serving the entire state, the Illinois Braille and Sight Saving School has a significant impact on the Jacksonville community, both educationally, religiously and economically.

Day Students

A number of students served by the school live in the Jacksonville area, and are encouraged to attend school as day students. These day students also are permitted to utilize many school aids and facilities during the summer months.

The churches of Jacksonville cooperate with the school in providing religious instruction and experience for the students. Parents signify the church of their choice for these purposes.

Economically, IBSSS pays out over $1,000,000 annually in salaries to its 190 employees, with other funds going for countless goods and services purchased locally.

Expansion Plans

Past expansion of the physical plant, including the recent completion of a library-classroom building, a dormitory, and a gymnasium, and future growth already in the planning stages, is only one area in which the school aids the community economically.

In the immediate future, funds have been made available for a new maintenance building for the campus, at a cost of $125,000. Ground-breaking for this structure will take place this fall.

Long range planning calls for a new administration and school building for the junior and senior high school students. It is hoped that the much needed replacement of the present administration building will be accomplished in the near future.

ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICES, several classrooms, and the school auditorium are housed in the Main Building on the IBSSS East State Street campus. Long range planning calls for the razing of this structure, and the construction of a new administrative and school building for junior and senior high school students. Estimated replacement cost of the present structure is approximately $2,000,000.

THE LIBRARY, part of the new library-classroom building constructed at a cost of $465,288, in addition to meeting the standards of a school of this size, has 10,000 volumes of braille. Part of the new facilities include a professional library for staff members, and a tactile learning center.

TWO NEW STRUCTURES, both completed in 1964, have greatly enhanced facilities at IBSSS. The gymnasium (above) includes a regulation size basketball court and game area, a large well-padded room for wrestling and gymnastics, ultra-modern lockerroom facilities, and offices for the departmental staff. On the west edge of the 18 acre campus is the new girls residence hall which accommodates 48 students. Total cost of the two structures was $812,887.00.

A NEW student union will be the next building to be constructed on the I.C. campus. The half-million dollar structure will be located on Edgemoor Road overlooking the athletic fields, and it is expected to be completed by fall of 1967. Plans call for large lounges and study areas, a snack bar, a game room, a post office, a bookstore, a faculty room, alumni and public information offices, and rooms for student organizations.

TURNER HALL for men is the newest dormitory, and it is named for the two brothers who helped establish the College and who worked for the "Land Grant College Act" which made possible most of the nation's large state universities.

Historic I.C. Adds To Community While Offering Liberal Arts

Jacksonville is the home of "the first college in Illinois to graduate a class." Illinois College, a 137-year old liberal arts college, continues to offer courses in the major academic disciplines, leading to the A.B. and B.S. degrees.

It was in 1829 — just eleven years after the admission of Illinois into the Union — that the dreams began to be fulfilled for a Presbyterian pioneer minister of the Jacksonville area, Rev. John M. Ellis, who labored and wrote and did all in his power to establish a college (or "seminary of learning") in Illinois. The college which was founded by a group of Yale students was in answer to the persuading of Ellis.

Many individuals prior to 1829 took an active part in laying the ground-work for the establishment of Illinois College.

According to the College's eminent historian and sixth president, Dr. Charles H. Rammelkamp, "Although Illinois College was not founded by any single individual, it was this itinerant missionary, John Milot Ellis, who started the movement which led to its founding."

"Mr. Ellis had not been long in Illinois before he saw the urgent need of better educational facilities for the settlers. Indeed, the educational needs of the new country rested almost as heavily as the religious emergency upon his conscience.

"He realized, as have many other missionaries, that there can be no substantial progress in morality and religion without adequate educational opportunities," according to Rammelkamp in Illinois College, A Centennial History.

Seek Site For College
In January, 1828, Ellis and Thomas Lippincott began a tour of investigation through the counties of Greene, Morgan, and Sangamon—looking for a site for the proposed college.

The hill at Wilson's Grove, the present College Hill, in Jacksonville was one of several acceptable sites. Springfield was rejected because "the charming hills" of Jacksonville were such that Springfield seemed to "furnish no parallel."

Classes Begin
Problems arose, but on November 15, 1829 the first "Yale Band" member arrived in Jacksonville with his bride of less than three months. Julian M. Sturtevant set out to begin his duties as the first instructor in Illinois College; students gathered for the first class on Monday, January 4, 1830 in "Old Beecher." Beecher Hall, the state's oldest college building, still stands today on the campus.

From beginnings which held almost unsurmountable difficulties, the new college grew and prospered and contributed a steady stream of graduates and former students who helped to lead the state, the nation, and numerous professions.

In Heart Of State
At a time when Chicago was unknown, and when the entire area northwest of Peoria and Bloomington had less than two persons per square mile, Jacksonville and Illinois College were in the heart of the active populated area of the state.

The influence of the Jacksonville area and its residents was felt in governmental activities; cultural events hit high points in Jacksonville as the state began to emerge from wilderness; and the men and women of Jacksonville contributed to the founding and nurturing of medical, legal, journalistic, educational, business and industrial, and religious beginnings of Illinois.

Grow Together
Almost from the start, Illinois College through its faculty, students, administrative leaders, and alumni and friends have been a part of the warp and woof of the Jacksonville community.

Edward Beecher of the literary and abolitionist Beecher family was Illinois College's first president. Ralph Waldo Emerson and Bronson Alcott were among the first of an unending stream of distinguished visitors.

Richard Yates, Illinois' Civil War governor, was in the College's first graduating class and therefore was in the first college graduation class in the state. Other early students included Newton Bateman, who organized the Illinois public school system. William Jennings Bryan followed in subsequent classes, and on up to the present time I.C. alumni have achieved significant roles of leadership.

Today two of Illinois' representatives to the U.S. House are alumni — Paul Findley and Charlotte Thompson Reid.

Maintains Outstanding Record
Although in size the college is in the lower 30 per cent in the nation, it ranks in the upper 30 per cent in the total number of college faculty members produced. The College is one of the few which have chapters of Phi Beta Kappa national honor fraternity. A high percentage of alumni are listed in Who's Who.

Nearly 800 students attend Illinois College, many of them from homes in west central Illinois and from throughout the state and the nation. Several foreign students attend also, and they, along with visiting international professors, help bring cultural and educational information and understanding from other areas of the world.

Economic Factors
Current employees number about 125. The payroll is in excess of a half million dollars annually. The current campus of about 50 acres, with several new buildings to complement the old, helps maintain the physical plant necessary to carry out the college's educational purposes.

The complete story of Illinois College is told in numerous histories, as well as in the lives of numerous alumni and members of the community. It is a continuing story to which chapters are added daily as the College and Jacksonville grow and fulfill their missions.

President Summarizes College Role
President L. Vernon Caine, the tenth and the current president of Illinois College, has summarized the College's story for the community:

"For 137 years Illinois College has been an integral part of Jacksonville. Many of its young people have gone on to fame and fortune all over the world after attending Illinois College. Much of the knowledge and luster of the name of Jacksonville throughout the state and nation has always been closely related to that of Illinois College. Men and women who have attended Illinois College make up a substantial segment of the business, professional, religious, and cultural leadership of Jacksonville. The College will continue to be a major factor in the life of the community while serving a much wider constituency, and its steady growth will continue to be a considerable economic factor.

"More and more people will continue to come to Jacksonville because Illinois College is located here."

"OKLAHOMA," the Broadway musical, was a recent Hilltoppers theatrical production open to the public. "Summer Theater '66" is a current community-college experiment in summer stock productions.

BEECHER HALL, oldest college building west of the Allegheny Mountains, was restored 15 years ago and is now one of the state's features promoted by the Illinois Historical Society. It is presently the home of two of the College's four men's literary societies. In ante bellum days, Beecher Hall contained all of the College's physical facilities.

RAMMELKAMP CHAPEL, here shown during the 1966 baccalaureate service, was dedicated in April, 1962. Named for the College's sixth president, it seats up to 1100 persons.

THE I.C. BLUEBOYS compete in football and other intercollegiate sports. The athletic department also offers physical education courses and supervises intramural sports.

DR. WALTER JUDD, former U.S. congressman and Far East expert, was one of the campus speakers during the past year.

AS USUAL, the Illinois College 137th-year commencement exercises were held "in the grove" on the campus lawn south of the chapel.

Jacksonville, ISD Play Big Role In Education Of Deaf

Illinois School for the Deaf has been an integral part of the Jacksonville community during the entire 127 years of its existence in the community. Many Jacksonville people have been attracted to the profession of teaching the deaf, while many Morgan county natives, a number of whom graduated from Illinois College, can be found in the leadership of most large schools for the deaf throughout the United States.

Over the years, ISD has contributed to the development of programs for the deaf through its continuous leadership in the field. Philip G. Gillett, who was superintendent from 1856 until 1893, was a nationally known educational leader. Daniel T. Cloud, who headed the school from 1929 until 1952, is still remembered for developing the unit school system, and for his skillful leadership.

Beginnings

The Illinois School for the Deaf was authorized by the state legislature in 1839 and signed into law by Governor Carlin, but it was not until February 1842 that any definite steps were taken. By that time, the citizens of Jacksonville had collected $979.50, which was used to purchase seven acres of land one mile west of the court house.

The first building, which is still used as the south wing of the Main Building, was completed in 1845. Classes were to begin in November, but a heavy snowfall followed by a period of extremely cold weather delayed the opening until January 26, 1846. Four pupils were in attendance.

In the present day, ISD is an important part of the state-wide program for educating children with impaired hearing. Of the 2,200 deaf children in the state, 463 attended the Jacksonville campus this year. In admitting pupils, priority is given to deaf children in areas where there are no local special educational facilities.

Unique System

The Illinois School for the Deaf is unique among similar schools in that it classifies students in separate buildings according to the method of communication which affords the best prospect for successful education. Entering pupils are tested to determine the extent to which they can hear, speak or use language in any form.

On the basis of these tests, beginning pupils are assigned to primary oral or primary acoustic classes. Only when a student has attained sufficient communication skill, is he returned to regular or special classes in public school.

Upon completion of the primary program, students are enrolled in the high school department. Those pupils who have aptitude for academic achievement take a college preparatory course, while others enroll in a regular course of study which provides greater emphasis on pre-vocational subjects.

A third track, the work-study program, combines terminal academic subjects, industrial arts, and a supervised work experience on campus or in the community.

Vocational Training

The practical arts department provides pre-vocational training in many areas for both boys and girls. At about 15 years of age, all students enter this program, which provides orientation in all shop areas, followed by intensive training in a specific vocation best suited to the pupil's abilities and interests.

On the job training and supervision for a selected group of students is also offered, while vocational rehabilitation counselors meet annually with parents, and students to plan further training or job placement for each individual.

Graduates of ISD are found in a wide variety of occupations. A recent study showed graduates of the past five years involved in 31 different types of employment.

The Special Unit

The Special Unit, to be housed September in a new, specially designed building, will be the center for three educational services: the tutorial program, the pre-school classes, and the multiple-handicapped unit.

There are two programs for parent-pupil tutoring. One is a weekly session for people living near Jacksonville, while the other is a monthly program for those living farther away. Opportunities are also available to observe the child in small group situations through visits to existing classes.

Both programs are designed to give the parent assistance in handling his child and begin developing structural controls through language and speech development. In those instances where the clinical evaluation is inconclusive, and more time is needed for a positive diagnosis, the child is placed in the tutorial program and is later re-examined.

Placement

When the tutoring and clinical services teams feel the child is mature enough to enroll in a full-time program, he is accepted in the developmental pre-school program or is referred to a local program if it is available. From the developmental pre-school program, the children are placed in appropriate elementary units.

Multiple-handicapped children are also served by the special unit, provided they are ambulatory and have sufficient mental ability to make adequate educational achievement, and the child's potential for self-sufficiency is reasonably good.

Athletics

The school's physical education program is of great importance, as it is in all other institutions for the education of youth. A well-equipped gymnasium containing an indoor swimming pool, and adjoining playgrounds and an athletic field are utilized for the program.

In addition to an intramural program for both boys and girls, the school is a member of the Illinois High School Athletic Association, and its teams compete with other high schools in football, basketball and track. The older girls also participate in events sponsored by the Illinois Girls' Athletic Association.

"ISD Family"

The Illinois School for the Deaf family is made up of 280 employees. Included in this group are 75 teachers and supervising teachers, 42 cottage parents, five nurses, 47 dietary employees, 25 janitors and janitresses, 35 power plant and maintenance workers, three social workers, and 26 part-time college student employees.

Each of these employees makes a specific contribution to the education and care of the children enrolled at the school.

For fiscal 1966-67, ISD has a budget of $2,120,507, with a monthly payroll of $133,209. Much of this money is spent in the Jacksonville area, and thus represents a significant contribution to the community's economy.

Physical Plant

The Illinois School for the Deaf program is carried on in 12 buildings on the 50 acre campus. Ages of the buildings range from the 121-year-old south wing of the Main Building to the new dietary center, opened in October 1965, and the new dormitory-classroom building which will be opened in the fall.

The newest building, which is air-conditioned and carpeted, will house the nursery school, classes for multiple-handicapped children, and the tutorial program.

The Illinois School for the Deaf continues to help deaf children become contributing citizens to the state of Illinois. Graduates of ISD are engaged in many professions as well as in skilled, semi-skilled and unskilled work. Deafness is not a handicap in most occupations.

BUNDLED UP against the cold, these ISD students head back to class after having lunch at the school's recently completed dietary center. The building (background) was completed in October 1965 and was the first of two new structures built under the present expansion program. The other construction project is the dormitory-classroom building which will be opened in the fall.

ORAL METHOD TRAINING can be used for many children with impaired hearing. In the classroom situation above, lip-reading is taught to young children by having students mouth the names of objects held by another student.

THE BACKBONE OF ISD operations is contained in the Main Building, which houses the entire administrative staff and organizational offices. The South Wing (L) which has remained in constant use, was the first structure built at the 127 year old institution.

THE DORMITORY COMPLEX, which lies on the south side of the 50 acre campus, houses most of the over 450 students who reside at the school. Housing facilities will be increased during the coming year with the opening of the recently completed dormitory-classroom building.

A SOON to be completed classroom and educational center (above) will house the Special Unit department starting in the fall. The tutorial program, preschool classes, and multiple-handicapped unit will be conducted in the ultra-modern structure.

Jacksonville State Hospital Largest Institution In This City

HOSPITALITY HOUSE, located at 138 West Morton Avenue, was made available for use by the hospital and by the community by Mrs. Lillian Green, a Jacksonville resident and a volunteer worker at JSH for a number of years. Games, lawn parties, or relaxing in the home-like atmosphere are favorite activities of the patients who go there.

By far the largest institution in Jacksonville in terms of the number of employees and services is the Jacksonville State Hospital. In the last fiscal year, 1104 persons were employed full-time. About half this number was concerned directly with patient service; the other half provided for care and maintenance of the physical plant, dietary and laundry services, safety and protection service and the office force.

The monthly payroll at the State Hospital is in excess of $469 thousand. Supplies and services purchased locally last year amounted to over $350 thousand.

These figures are quite impressive now, but when the institution was founded 117 years ago, the opposite was true. For several years, a small group of employees cared for a comparative handful of patients. Growth, however, was not long in coming.

On March 1, 1847, Governor Augustus C. French signed an act creating the state's first mental hospital. Through the pioneering efforts of Dorothea Lynde Dix, Illinois officially recognized that mental illness existed, that it was amenable to treatment, and that people may recover from it.

Purchased Land
In June 1847, the board of trustees negotiated the purchase of 160 acres of land south of Jacksonville at a cost of approximately 21 dollars an acre. The building, now known as the Administration Building, was begun in the fall of 1847, and although the first patient was admitted in November, 1851, and 138 patients were admitted during the first year, the building was not completed until 1868.

The biennial report of 1887 had inserted the word Central into the name of the hospital, making it Illinois Central Hospital for the Insane. Completion of the Annex Building, nearly one-sixth of a mile long and said to be the longest building under one roof, brought the capacity and the patient population to 1200.

The next 20 years brought a training school for nurses, a nurses' home, an infirmary, a tuberculosis hospital, a complete telephone system, 200 patients more than capacity, and shortage of attendants. The two latter conditions are current problems.

The thirty-fifth biennial report changed the name to Jacksonville State Hospital.

The patient population increased from 1746 patients in 1914 to 2184 patients in 1916. To relieve the acute over-crowding in the upstate hospitals, 250 patients had been transferred to Jacksonville from those areas.

This practice was continued until three years ago even though it was recognized that separation from familiar community, friends and family had a deleterious effect in the rehabilitation of the mentally ill.

This report also records the establishment of the eight-hour day and six-day week for employees.

Activity therapy programs were in operation. Recreational therapy offered two movies and two dances each week, and a three-month aide-training program had already begun.

Self-Sufficient
The hospital community was self-sufficient, producing within its confines most of what was needed to sustain it. To provide for the increasing population, 80 acres, at a price of $260 an acre, for garden and grazing the dairy herd was purchased.

By the 30's, the hospital had grown to 492 acres and the buildings therein housed 3017 patients. The duration of the war and shortages of material and help found Jacksonville State Hospital busily replacing and repairing equipment and buildings for its Centennial year in 1947. By 1958, 938 full-time employees ministered to the needs of 3327 resident patients.

Electro-convulsive therapy was being used and tranquilizing medications were being introduced with very satisfying results. The stage was being set for dramatic action in the search for recovered and sustaining mental health.

New Department
In 1960, bipartisan legislative support saw passage of 24 bills creating a new Department of Mental Health. Coupled with broad citizen support for the $150 million bond issue, the foundations for a new mental health program were laid.

Dr. Frances J. Gerty, head of the Department of Psychiatry at the University of Illinois agreed to serve as director of the new department to plan the state-wide program for mental health. Dr. Gerty and other mental health leaders in Illinois sought not merely a new treatment philosophy, but rather the broad approaches to individuals in stress characterized by early and intensive treatment of mental illness in the community.

The state was divided into 8 zones, each of which was to develop comprehensive mental health services. The state facilities within these zones were to become intensive treatment centers and through outpatient and allied services, to become the focal point for community education and activity in mental health programs, encouraging the development of other community facilities for the mentally ill.

Change Code
The mental health code was revised and modernized to keep abreast of the changes in mental health programming.

The philosophical structure of the Mental Health program in Illinois embodies seven principles: (1.) wherever possible treatment should be available in the community; (2.) facilities should provide early intensive treatment to avoid hospitalization; (3.) if techniques available only in a hospital setting are considered necessary, hospitalization should be in or near the patient's community; (4.) during hospitalization, programs should be initiated and directed toward the patient's family, employer, school, and community in general on what should be done to facilitate the patient's return to the community; (5.) outpatient care should be provided after acute episodes to hasten the resumption of full community living; (6.) a wide range of services should be incorporated to treat all types of psychiatric patients; (7.) in a truly community-oriented program full inter-agency cooperation is mandatory to support such a therapeutic program.

18 County Area
Jacksonville State Hospital is located in the center of an 18-county area in the west central part of the state designated as Zone V. These 18 counties are further sub-divided into 4 planning areas.

It was evident to the staff that if the hospital were to collaborate in the development of resources within these communities and indeed were to become an integral part of the resources for mental health within these communities that reorganization on geographic bases corresponding to the planning areas was essential.

In spite of shortages of staff and conditions of over-crowding, approximately 65 hundred patients were moved to their new locations on April 19, and the major initial step toward the development of comprehensive regional community mental health centers was taken.

Four Centers
The four autonomous centers are developing treatment programs for the patients in residence. The staff on each center is becoming acquainted with the community of which it is a part as they work in close collaboration with clinical staffs, courts, teachers, public health nurses, civic groups, and other groups or individuals providing for the mental health needs of the area.

Each of the regional comprehensive mental health centers, in conjunction with the community area it serves, is expected to develop a full spectrum of services including at

THE ADMINISTRATION BUILDING houses some of the administration offices in the center section. The 26 wards on the East and West wings are severely overcrowded with nearly one-thousand resident patients. The new windows are evident on the right side of the building, also the exterior refinishing.

THE CENTRAL CENTER serving Morgan County, as well as Cass, Scott, Greene, Calhoun and Jersey counties is located in this building on Diamond Street. The Central Center staff will work closely with the communities in these counties to develop sorely needed Mental Health services.

TRANSFERRING of nearly 900 patients from the Annex building to other residential areas added further to general overcrowding. Dried out wood interior construction and inadequate exits, especially for second and third floors, are some of the conditions which make this building a hazard for inhabitants. Razing is scheduled to begin this summer.

THE NEW HOSPITAL LAUNDRY, opened less than a year ago, is a modern, up-to-date plant. Laundry for the hospital, Illinois School for the Deaf, Illinois Braille and Sight Saving School and part of the Illinois Youth Commission is done here.

THE PATIENT SERVICE CENTER, yet to be opened, will house the commissary, barber and beauty shops, library, and lounge area.

MacMurray And Jacksonville Grow Together Through Years

LANDMARK — Annie Merner Chapel is a landmark on MacMurray's campus and in the community as well. Students attend weekly chapel services here. The chapel also is frequently the setting for conferences, concerts, and lectures sponsored by community organizations and civic groups.

MacMurray laid a cornerstone for a new men's residence recently and filled a copper box with documents and memorabilia identifying the college's growth, progress and goals for the future.

The box also received a sealed plastic packet, put there by Councilman Don Lahey for the City of Jacksonville. The packet holds the architect's sketch of Jacksonville's new municipal building, soon to get underway.

The event — with the coincidence of two new buildings — vividly symbolizes Jacksonville's brick and mortar progress of the past decade.

MacMurray has been an integral part of Jacksonville's progress and her changing skyline.

The new $700,000 men's residence hall, to be ready for students in the fall, is the fourth to go up since the Men's College was founded in 1955. It's the fifth new building to be built on MacMurray's 60-acre campus since the start of the 1960s. The others have included Kendall House, a men's residence opened in 1961; Irma Latzer Gamble Campus Center and the Chemistry Building, opened during 1964-65 and faculty apartment units, completed in 1964. The construction dollars poured into these projects have totaled over $2.5 million.

Building For Future

To MacMurray, these new facilities are a part of a long-range plan developed to chart the college's academic goals and economic future. The last five years — indeed, since the start of the Men's College — have been years of change at the 120-year-old college.

Sweeping curriculum changes have taken place to insure MacMurray students a quality education — one which will have enduring values in a rapidly changing and complex world. The MacMurray Plan, with its core curriculum in the Humanities providing students a solid foundation in the liberal arts, received nationwide acclaim when it was launched in 1962.

Major efforts have gone into improving faculty salaries to strengthen the teaching staff and to better reward those dedicated professors who have served the College many years. Salaries which averaged $6770 in 1961 had jumped last year to $9,500 plus another $1,000 in fringe benefits, and will be over $10,200 plus $1,200 in benefits next fall.

Strong Faculty

A challenging curriculum and improved faculty salary structure — both dedicated concerns of president Dr. Gordon E. Michelson since he came to the College in 1961 — have enabled MacMurray to attract and hold high caliber teachers. Fifty-three percent of MacMurray's faculty this past year held the Ph.D. degree, compared with 45 percent less than a decade ago.

The merits of MacMurray's approach to a quality education are paying off in other ways. The student body has grown steadily both in quality and quantity, and at the paced growth MacMurray set for herself.

Last year's enrollment was 1,053 full-time students, compared with 888 in 1960-61, toward a goal of 1,300 resident students by 1971.

The quality of her students is reflected in the number of graduates accepted into the best graduate schools and with substantial assistantships and fellowships. On the average, 50 percent of MacMurray's students go on in graduate and professional work.

The first men's class, graduated in 1961, already boasts five Ph.D.s — three in psychology, one of whom will be a member of the faculty at Yale University next fall, and two in chemistry, now employed by major chemical firms. Two undergraduate students — both physics majors — are among 20 outstanding students selected across the nation to participate in a six-week institute in space physics to be held this summer at Columbia University under NASA sponsorship.

Serves Community

Although MacMurray students first are citizens of the campus community, they also have found their place as citizens in the larger community of Jacksonville. Some 125 students this past year were volunteer workers, serving in the programs and projects of other institutions. They also spend an estimated $36,000 each month of the school year into Jacksonville's economy through the goods and services they purchase from local business.

These dollars are in addition to the $1.4 million annual payroll for MacMurray's 245 employees, including faculty; more than $400,000 for goods and services purchased locally; and the $5,000 plus MacMurray pays in taxes on property not used for academic purposes and therefore not tax-exempt.

Moreover, MacMurray's building and campus development program spills over benefits to Jacksonville in the form of federal government credit toward funds for urban renewal projects. It was recently estimated that MacMurray projects have earned credit in the amount of $150,000 which if approved would be matched with an additional $450,000 in federal funds for local community improvement programs.

"Civic Responsibility"

"But MacMurray would be remiss in her civic responsibility, if her citizenship in Jacksonville was measured only in terms of dollars and cents," said president Michelson.

"We have a responsibility to contribute and share in furthering the cultural and social progress of the community," he said. "MacMurray has always sought her proper role as a citizen."

One way has been through the Jacksonville-MacMurray Music Association, a town-gown group, which brings outstanding performers to Jacksonville for an annual concert series. Jacksonville has heard the Chicago Little Symphony, Leontyne Price, and the Robert Wagner Choral through this series. The Norman Luboff Choir promises to highlight the 1966-67 season.

A Russian Film Festival, the Gertrude Stein Art Exhibit, a lecture by Pulitzer Prize winner Mark Van Doren, the top jazz group of Ramsy Lewis are but a few of the MacMurray-sponsored programs which have been shared with Jacksonville this year. MacMurray students from other lands, the student choral groups, and faculty members frequently provide programs for local organizations. Jacksonville citizens can count on "something special" at MacMurray nearly every week.

Future Plans

What lies ahead? In charting her future, MacMurray set a ten-year financial and development program with a goal of $9 million by 1972. At the start of the fiscal year last July, $2 million had been accomplished — leaving seven years and $7 million to go to realize such major projects as enrichment of endowment for scholarships, expansion of facilities for the library and dining hall, the renovation of Science Hall, a new fine arts center and a field house. The "first million" has been accomplished this year — setting a new high in gifts to the College and moving MacMurray another step forward in its aim as a quality institution and good citizen of Jacksonville.

TEN EMPLOYEES OF ANDERSON-CLAYTON currently are enrolled in a general chemistry course at MacMurray — a special nine-week program and the first of its kind the local firm has offered employees. Dr. Fred McCollough, who came to MacMurray from industry, teaches the course. It is a part of the company's training program designed to better equip employees to handle their jobs and to better prepare them for future assignments. Anderson-Clayton also plans to engage MacMurray in the fall to teach an organic chemistry course for employees.

EXPANSION — MacMurray's new men's residence, to be ready for students next fall, will house 148 students. It will be completely air-conditioned and feature a large living room-lounge on the street level, a recreational area on the lower level, an apartment for the faculty resident, and carpeted corridors. The Men's College enrollment has quadrupled since the first class of 134 men was enrolled in 1957.

THIRTY ELEMENTARY SCHOOL TEACHERS in the Jacksonville area studied physics and mathematics at MacMurray last winter in a special in-service institute the college conducted with a grant from the National Science Foundation. The two-semester course, directed by professor Herman Siemers, head of the Physics Department, was designed to give the teachers an opportunity to broaden their backgrounds in those areas of physics and math which could be adapted to elementary school curriculums.

TUTORIAL PROGRAM — Among the 125 MacMurray students who worked this past year as volunteers in Jacksonville's institutions, were 55 students who in January organized and conducted a tutorial program to help those boys and girls in Jacksonville's schools having problems with their lessons. Mac students devoted a minimum of an hour a week, after school and on Saturdays, helping boys and girls with their math, reading, geography or science. Here, Patti Crawford works with a Jefferson School youngster on a geography assignment.

Passavant Hospital: A Success Story

The growth of Passavant Memorial Area Hospital to its present stature as an area health center providing medical care, educational opportunity, and economic stability is a community success story.

Since ownership of the hospital passed in 1906 to an association composed of the Protestant churches of the community, Passavant's progress has depended almost entirely on the hard work, generosity, and enlightened interest of men and women determined that the people of this area should have access here to as many of the benefits of modern medicine as possible. The 150-bed hospital is a tribute to their dedication.

In recent years, to keep pace with the tremendous advances in medicine, PMAH has increased or modernized services provided by most departments. More and more people come to the out-patient department, for example.

The number of out-patient calls has nearly tripled in the last 10 years, as services have become available to patients who need care which does not require hospitalization but which does require the skilled personnel and up-to-date equipment that only a hospital can provide.

Additional Services
The hospital laboratory has been modernized to aid physicians in diagnosis and treatment. In addition to routine tests made when a patient is admitted, the Passavant laboratory last December added tests for blood sugar, blood urea nitrogen, total cholesterol, and uric acid.

These procedures are performed for every new patient for a nominal fee. The lab, under the direction of a full-time pathologist, also serves non-hospitalized patients as their physicians request.

New equipment has been added to every department in recent years. Superficial as well as deep X-ray therapy is available. There is an expanding program of physical therapy. Patients are served by a registered pharmacist. The hospital was approved in 1961 as a poison control center, and some 257 children have received treatment for poisoning, with no fatalities.

This progress was made possible by the opening in 1953 of the modern PMAH building, to which citizens of the area contributed funds. Local support also made possible the construction of the School of Nursing.

Passavant has maintained a School of Nursing, now fully accredited, for 63 years. It is supported by tuition fees and by money from the hospital's operating funds.

Educational Center
The importance of the School to health care in this community is beyond measure. Of all the professional nurses employed at Passavant, 73 per cent are graduates of the PMAH School. In addition, other graduates are serving on both general and private duty in other local hospitals.

They are working in public health, in nursing homes, doctors' offices, and industrial plants. They serve as nursing administrators and educators, and as specialists in such fields as anesthesia and psychiatric nursing.

This year, there were around 70 applications for the 36 places available in the freshman class which will begin training in September.

The hospital continues to grow. Plans now are underway for an addition to the west end of the building to provide more emergency and out-patient facilities and to enlarge space on patient floors. During the last year all patient rooms were air conditioned and equipped with radio and television. At the same time, a new nurse call system was installed.

Economic Asset
Passavant's importance as an economic asset to its community also is growing. Monthly expenses average $147,000, of which around $100,000 is payroll. Another $47,000 is spent, much of it locally, for supplies and utilities. The hospital provides employment for more than 300 people.

While it is not a profit-making institution, Passavant does have a sound financial structure. This is due in part to its Endowment Fund, which functions as a kind of life insurance policy for the hospital. All Endowment funds have been received from friends as gifts, and are permanently invested.

The income they produce is available to help sustain Passavant in case of financial emergency. Older supporters of the hospital remember years in which it might have had to close its doors without the "cushion" provided by such money.

In an inflationary period such as the present one, interest from the Endowment Fund is used in many ways to offset expenses and, in the long run, reduce charges to patients.

Use Of Gifts
Passavant's Endowment Fund now totals better than a half-million dollars in farms and securities.

Such gifts become a permanent source of strength to the hospital and are enduring memorials to those who give or bequeath money or property for endowment use. They will continue to serve the community through the hospital, for generations.

Most of the credit for the recent growth of the Fund belongs to the former Trustees of PMAH, who organized themselves in 1957 into a working group for the express purpose of presenting the hospital's endowment needs to the public.

Many other friends of the hospital support it also with their time. A staff of volunteer chaplains ministers daily to the spiritual needs of patients, and a corps of around 500 volunteers work regularly to provide comforts and conveniences which the hospital budget cannot cover. The Aid Society sponsors the volunteer program and in addition raises several thousand dollars each year to benefit Passavant.

Board Of Trustees
Passavant is owned by the Protestant churches of the hospital community, each of which sends one or more representatives to the Board of Trustees. A 24-member Board of Trustees has the responsibility for the operation of the hospital. Trustees are elected by the Governors to four-year terms, so that membership changes each year.

Present officers of the Board of Trustees are Robert Sibert, president; William Buchanan, vice-president; Mrs. John Pine, secretary, and Richard Mills, treasurer.

"Our hope is that Passavant never will stop changing and growing with the times and needs," Robert Sibert, president of the Board of Trustees, said. "We are confident that it will continue to be an important asset to this community."

WHAT'S FOR DESSERT? Dietitians confer regularly with patients about their menus.

HOUSEKEEPING is a round-the-clock job.

IMPROVED TECHNIQUES for transfusions depend on a ready supply of blood and precision laboratory work.

THE SIBERT MEMORIAL LIBRARY contains approximately 1,000 volumes used for research by nursing students.

Routt, Our Saviour's Serve 2nd Century

The Catholic parochial school system in Jacksonville is more than one hundred years old, yet present day planning and expansion programs will be an important part of the system's history when viewed after another century of educational service.

Both Routt high school and Our Saviour's grade school have had a strongly beneficial influence on the community throughout their history, and have unceasingly sought to better their programs to meet the religious and academic need of youth.

The original elementary school was situated near the depot of the old T. W. & W. railroad and before 1872 it numbered 185 pupils who were taught by the Rev. Joseph Costa, pastor, and two laymen.

Second Building

On January 2, 1873, a new parochial grade school was erected on Court Street and on August 19, 1873 the first Dominican Sisters arrived from Kentucky to staff the new school.

These six Sisters, Sister Cecilia Carey, Sister Mary Agnes Maguire, Sister Osanna Rowell, Sister Alberta Rumphff, Sister Rachel Conway and Sister Josephine Meagher, were housed in a small cottage next to the three story school on Court Street. From this small beginning was to grow the congregation of the Dominican Sisters of the Sacred Heart in Springfield whose schools are staffed throughout the Midwest, South, West, and in South America by more than 400 Sisters of St. Dominic.

Our Saviour's Built

The present grade school building was erected on East State Street in 1934 and is presently staffed by seven Sisters of St. Dominic and four lay teachers. September's enrollment will be more than 500. The principal is Sister Philip Neri, O.P.

Catholic secondary education in Jacksonville dates from 1902 with the establishment in the parish community center (known as the "Routt Club") of a four year high school.

In 1905, the present parish high school, designed by Henry J. Schlacks, architect, was opened on East State Street. Because of the munificence of William R. Routt, the new high school was called Routt. Eventually this four year high school expanded into a four year college but the college department was finally abandoned approximately 35 years ago.

Unique among parochial high schools in this country, Routt is an endowed institution. Beneficiary of a trust fund established by Mrs. William R. Routt, the high school has thus far been able to operate on a tuition-free basis.

High Growth Rate

Routt High School is accredited by the State of Illinois and the North Central Association. Sister M. Aguinata, O.P. is the present principal. Its enrollment increased from 148 students in 1961 to 258 in 1966, a growth of 77%. Over-crowded conditions necessitated the construction of a new high school building with gymnasium on E. College Avenue, which will be ready for occupancy in September.

The new structure, designed by the Raymond E. Maritz and sons, architectural firm of St. Louis, will cost approximately $775,000.00, more than half of which has already been paid by the parishioners of Our Saviour's Church. The projected capacity of the new building is 500. The former Routt high school building will serve as part of the grade school system next September. Plans to transfer four of the elementary grades to the former high school building are already in progress.

Faculty Residence

The present faculty residence of the religious staff of Routt High School and Our Saviour's Grade School was erected in 1962 and 1963 of Mediterranean style with an enclosed courtyard. It has individual rooms for sixteen Sisters, a chapel, community-room, dining room, kitchen and utility rooms within the cloister area. The front part of the building is devoted to parlors and music rooms.

On August 19, 1963, ninety years to the day of the arrival of the six pioneer Dominican Sisters to Jacksonville, the present Sisters moved into their new home and a solemn Mass was offered in the convent chapel that morning. The structure was later blessed by Most Rev. William A. O'Connor, D.D. of Springfield.

The cost of the completely equipped building was in excess of $200,000.00 which was raised in two years by the Catholics of Jacksonville.

In operation here in Jacksonville for 100 years, the Catholic parochial school system is a parental expression in favor of total education which includes religion as part of the daily curriculum. The cost to these parents over the past century is incalculable, but an indication is given by the above statistical survey based on the annual per-pupil cost of School District 117 and the enrollment records of Our Saviour's Grade School and Routt High School. These latter figures include only those boys and girls residing within School District 117. If the cost of the new Routt High School were added to these figures, the total amount would be well in excess of $3,000,000.00 in the past 10 years.

THE FACULTY RESIDENCE, or Convent, was constructed in 1963, and has accommodations for 16 Sisters.

'OLD ROUTT', as the building is now termed, will be used for elementary school classes in the future. The structure served as the high school unit from 1905 until the past term.
